Sued to Keep His Wife Away, Says He's Sorry

"GROUCH" HE CALLS SELF

Charles W. Mitchell, the Atlantic avenue druggist, who petitioned the court to forbid his wife from coming to his store, today repented of his action, and admitted that he had done it under the spell of a "grouch." He says he plans to withdraw his petition.

He asserted that an attorney, W. J. Patron of No. 53 State street, in effect suggested his taking legal action. Mr. Patron, over the telephone, denied this.

Mr. Mitchell talked with a reporter at his home at No. 252 Blue Hill parkway, Milton, and did not hesitate to condemn himself for his action. He spoke of himself as a "grouch," mentioned his "cussedness," and said he was pretty hard to get along with and didn't hesitate to admit as much.

Earlier, Mrs. Mitchell had heard the news of the legal proceedings from the reporter, and was at first overcome. Later she commented that Mr. Mitchell had probably taken the action in one of his "cranky" moods, and that he would be sorry when he felt better.

Her prediction was realized when

OPTIMISM AS MARKET REOPENS

By CHARLES W. STORM.

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—After being closed for seventeen weeks the New York Stock Exchange reopened today for trading in bonds.

There was a fairly big crowd on the floor of the exchange when it opened at 10 o'clock and long before that hour clearing house clerks were at their places along the counter to register transactions.

Long wooden tables had been constructed on the floor of the exchange to accommodate traders before which was a temporary rostrum to accommodate the committee of governors who are to sit in judgment upon the trades made.

The opening was marked by a feeling of optimism which pervaded the financial district, and predictions were made in some quarters that trading would be extended to shares soon.

During the first fifteen minutes

The Boston firemen are responding to the general alarm sent out for the Boston AMERICAN'S "Give-a-Basket" fund.

This alarm was sounded to rally Christmas dinners and other relief for Boston's poor. The fireman knows the city's poor. So often he has to run right into homes of the poor, as well as of rich, to put out fires. He sees the family life just as it is and, if poverty rules, the fireman knows it.

The Russell Club, the Boston firemen's organization, today gave $25 to the fund.

The Christmas Editor wishes to announce that useful articles are acceptable, as well as money. Meaning that you can contribute shoes or stockings or mittens, or such articles appropriate to the season.

Books are welcome, and so are toys, for the AMERICAN wishes to make these Christmas baskets really "Christmassy."

For instance, L. C. Page, the publisher, offered 100 Christmas books in the first week of the "Give-a-Basket" campaign. Now he writes, increasing that offer ten-fold, as follows:

Christmas Editor AMERICAN:

In reply to yours of November 24, I am glad to note that you are pleased with the offer of 100 books for your "Christmas basket" campaign. After talking the matter over with my brother, we have decided to go further in this direction, and I am authorized to advise you that this publishing house will supply instead of 100 Christmas books, 1,000 volumes, or one for each basket up to 1,000.

President Wilson Returns to Capital

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 28.—Alert and smiling after his three-day vacation spent with his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Sayre, at Williamstown, Mass., President Wilson returned to Washington at 9:37 o'clock today. He went immediately to the White House, where he took up the work of preparation of his forthcoming address to Congress. The journey from Williamstown was without special incident. Breakfast was taken by the party on the train between Baltimore and Washington.

BROCKTON CLEW TO YOUNG GIRL FOUND STARVING IN FENWAY

"Mystery girl" at City Hospital who says she is Alice Kingsley of Providence.

Alice Kingsley, the young girl found early Thanksgiving morning in the Fenway on the verge of starvation, is still at the City Hospital. The hospital authorities are in doubt as to her identity. She states her name is Alice Kingsley and gives her address as No. 1067 Broad street, Providence.

Investigation by the AMERICAN representative in Providence leads the police and the authorities at the hospital to believe she is Alice Shattuck of Brockton.

She denies her name is Shattuck. She is believed to be the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Shattuck of Brockton. Although she admits to one, and denies to another, that she has lived in Brockton for many years she still persists she lived under the name of Kingsley.

Mrs. Christie Shattuck of No. 9 Brook street, Brockton, admitted her daughter had been missing from home for several days, and that she had been unable to locate her, although she had made an extended search among her friends. She will visit the Boston City Hospital today in an effort to make the identification complete.

The girl was found not far from the Colling monument by an officer from Station 16. She fainted as soon as she arrived at the station and was taken at once to the hospital. There she was unable to give any connected account of herself, nor could she explain how she came to be in the Fenway.

She mentioned the name of Mrs. Mahel Herrick of Providence. Mrs. Herrick was located at her home in Autumn street, Providence, and from address said that she was sure the girl was Alice Shattuck.

The girl's parents, she said, had formerly lived in Providence, where she had become acquainted with them. She had not seen Alice since a year ago, when the latter paid her a visit. She had had a letter recently from her, bearing a Brockton mark.

Mrs. Shattuck did not wish to discuss the disappearance of her daughter, although she was glad to have some clew to what had become of her. She said Alice had left home several days ago, but gave no reason for her action.

Her daughter is sixteen years old and has been a student at the Whitman School in Brockton. Mrs. Shattuck is a saleswoman in a Brockton department store.

She described her daughter as 5 feet 3 inches in height, with dark hair parted on the side and worn down her back, dark eyes, regular teeth, red cheeks. She wore a brown sport coat when she left home.

At the City Hospital one of the officials said that the description tallied "fairly well" with the girl who was found in the Fenway.

RUSSIANS STOP KAISER'S DRIVE AGAINST WARSAW

Dispatches from Paris state that for three days British reinforcements have been pouring into France. There has been a steady stream of transports into Havre, Dieppe, Boulogne and Calais. Reports are that at least 1,000,000 fresh troops are landing or soon to land in France and that the allies are now preparing to launch a vigorous offensive against the Germans.

The second drive of the Germans against Warsaw has been smashed.

This is the news that comes from Petrograd today in the long awaited official announcement of the situation in Poland.

In addition to this statement the Warsaw correspondent of the Bourse Gazette telegraphs that 100,000 Germans under General von Mackenson have been surrounded and are fighting desperately to cut their way out.

Petrograd also sends word to the Matin (Paris) of a report current in the Russian capital that a German cruiser believed to be the Hertha has been sunk near Libau, and that the German battleship Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse has been torpedoed and sunk in the Baltic.

Germany is wild over the recent exploits of her navy, according to a Berlin dispatch quoting a member of the staff of Admiral von Tipitz, the German Minister of Marine. National pride and zeal has been aroused by the daring feats of the submarines. Activity at Kiel and Hamburg has given rise to the reports that the German fleet is preparing to go out and give battle to the British fleet.

A telegram to the Amsterdam Telegraaf from Sluis says that fighting has been resumed in West Flanders.

WIFE WEEPS AT SUIT TO DRIVE HER FROM STORE

Mr. Mitchell talked to the reporter. He said:

HOW IT HAPPENED.

"I'm mighty sorry that I did think. But you know how it is. A man will get a crouch, do something in a fit of temper, then be sorry for it afterward.

"This was how it happened. Mrs. Mitchell used to come in to the store almost every evening. Several of my customers had noticed her presence, and asked me how I stood for it.

A lawyer, W. J. Patron of No. 53 State street, one of my customers, happened in one evening when she was there. The next night he spoke to me about it and said:

"How is it Mrs. Mitchell is in the store all the time? I shouldn't think you'd like it."

I said to him, 'I don't like it, but what can I do about it?'

"Why, that's easy," he replied. 'Petition for an injunction asking her to keep away.'

"I happened to be in a cross frame of mind and his suggestion appealed to me, so I said, 'Go ahead, bring the proper action, and I'll stand for it.'

"Thus I employed Patron as my attorney and he prepared the papers and I signed them. I didn't suppose it was in for all this notoriety or I wouldn't have thought of such a thing.

"There's no trouble between myself and my wife. I'm a big man to get along with, and I know it. I'm not ashamed to admit it. It's true. She's a clerk every three months, for nothing, just as a sample of my cussedness.

THE BLAME IS ALL HIS.

"A man is too apt to think lightly of a matter like this, but it means everything to a woman. I deeply regret it all, and I think I shall order my attorney to withdraw my petition.

"It was all my mistake. If there was any blame, it was mine."

Mr. Patron, called upon the telephone, was told Mr. Mitchell's version of the inception of the suit. He commented:

"Mr. Mitchell conferred with me two or three times on the matter. He told me of his wife's actions and asked what he could do. I looked up the law in the matter and advised him, as I would any other client.

"You say he says I suggested the petition. That is entirely untrue. I ought ver much whether it made the statement I don't see how he could."

The Mitchell drug store is at No. 253 Atlantic avenue, the Mitchell home is at No. 253 Blue Hill Parkway, Milton.

HE WORKS LATE.

Mr. Mitchell, when the reporter arrived, was asleep upstairs, his wife said. He doesn't get up till 10 o'clock in the morning, as he works late at night. Mrs. Mitchell was busy with her household duties, and conversed with the reporter from a front window. She wore a dust cap and carried a broom and said she was really too busy to talk.

"I don't know what there is to talking about," replied Mrs. Mitchell, to the first question as to the remarkable legal action undertaken by her husband. "I didn't know he was even thinking of such a thing."

She went when she was shown a newspaper story of the legal proceedings.

"Oh, mercy! This is all a terrible mistake," she sobbed. "My poor husband could not have done this. We have loved each other dearly for eleven long, happy years. I cannot understand it."

After a little she recovered from the first shock sufficiently to tell this story:

"I had been going to his store two or three times a week during all our married life. Never once did he show any displeasure at my being there. I always thought he enjoyed my coming. We have no children, and I was lonesome at home in the long evenings when he had to be at his business.

"I could not bear to stay at home alone night after night. I went to his store. It was a pleasure to me to be near him.

CALLS IT "PREPOSTEROUS."

"I have never used unseemly language in my life. The suggestion that that would explain his action is preposterous. One would think I was not a lady. I assure you I am." She glanced again at the newspaper clipping, then commented:

"I think the lawyer must have written this paper filed in court, and Charley probably signed it without reading it. He is so careless. No man in his right senses would say such things about his wife. Oh, we were so happy together. I can't understand it. I just can not.

"I never went to his store in the daytime until last August. Then I had a good reason for going. But that is all past now, and I am not going to say anything more about it.

"He never upbraided me for coming to the store. How should I know that it was distasteful to him. The first intimation I had was three weeks ago when I went to the store and asked him for some money. I really needed it. He had forgotten to provide it before leaving home. At that time he did get mad and say some unkind things. But that's the only time.

"Charley's health has been poor lately. I have noticed that he's been more irritable than formerly. This action must have been taken in one of his cranky spells. I am very sure that when he is feeling better he will be sorry as he can be."

ON THE BEST OF TERMS.

Mitchell's petition to the court asks that his wife be restrained from molesting him or interfering with his business.

He says he is on the best of terms with Mrs. Mitchell, but that he cannot keep her away from the store. He charges that on three visits her actions are obnoxious and reprehensible, her language unseemly, and that she has repeatedly threatened him.

Treasured Heirlooms Are Lost in Suitcase Taken at South Station.

Search is being made throughout Boston today by the police for jewels valued at $500 and treasured as heirlooms, stolen from Mrs. Samuel W. McCall, wife of the Republican candidate for Governor in the last election, and for the bold thief who took the suit case containing them from her side at the South Station.

Mrs. McCall and her daughter, Ruth, were talking with friends in the waiting room. The jewels were in a suit case on the floor within a foot of Miss McCall. Scores of persons were passing.

Miss McCall failed to take notice of a man who apparently bumped into her by accident. A moment afterwards she looked to see if the suit case was safe, and found it had disappeared.

Miss McCall and her mother found a policeman and told him of the robbery, but there was no trace of the thief.

Mrs. McCall with several women friends had gone to the station to see her daughter off to Newport.

Besides the heirlooms there was a quantity of valuable clothing in the case. The jewelry consisted of a pointed brooch pin with a half carat diamond, Florentine pendant set with sapphires and a string of gold beads. The clothing consisted of a dark red suit with double skirt and coat trimmed with seal, a pair of low shoes and a pair of high shoes, four silk shirtwaists and a toilet set.

OPTIMISM AT REOPENING OF THE EXCHANGE

$115,000 worth of bonds were traded, the fluctuations being narrow.

Dealings were confined to eight issues, chief of which were United States Steel Corporation 5's, Distillers' 5's and Ray Consolidated Copper 8's. The Steel 5's opened at 99¾, but quickly shaded to 99½. Distillers' 5's were three and a fraction higher, beginning at 56. Soon, however, they shaded. Ray Consolidated 6's were also slightly higher. The Steel 5's were quoted at 101 when the exchange closed on July 30.

Secretary George Fly of the Stock Exchange said he was very optimistic over the outlook, judging from the conditions which prevailed at the opening of the market.

The total business of the two hours' session amounted to $649,000. U. S. Steel sinking fund 5's were the most active in the trading, opening at 99¾ and closing at 99¾. But five government bonds were sold during the day. The largest single transaction was in Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul convertibles, convertibles totalling $20,000. The bonds sold at 93¾, while the minimum price fixed by the committee was 87.

Normally the volume of bond business reaches from $3,000,000 to $5,000,000 daily, this being equal to 3,000 to 5,000 bonds. On account of the conditions imposed by the war, however, it is obvious that business will be of a restricted nature.

The first sale reported was $5,000 of Steel 5's. The first sale in Distillers 5's was also $5,000. Chesapeake & Ohio convertibles began at 83½, against 79 at the close of the market in July. About 1,000 bonds are listed upon the exchange with the par value of more than $12,000,000. There are only about forty or fifty specialties, but every one of the 1,100 members of the exchange has some time or other had orders to execute in them, so the opening of the exchange for bonds trading has a financial benefit for the country, which is readily apparent.

MAINE CLEW IN BROOKLINE BANDIT SLAYING

Two men appearing to answer the description of the robbers concerned in the murder of Charles H. Merrill, manager of a drug store at Brookline, November 20, were seen the following day in Lebanon, Me., according to reports received today.

Lawrence Cassidy, a farmer, said the men, who seemed nervous, asked him the shortest route to the Canadian border. Lewis Peterson, keeper of a hotel, said they spent the night of November 21 at the farm.

The inquest into the death of Merrill was continued today before Judge Perkins in the Brookline court

BANKERS DENY FIVE BILLIONS ENGLISH DEBT

The average Boston layman read in his newspaper today that David Lloyd George, Chancellor of the British Exchequer, stood up in the House of Commons and accused the United States of owing his country the staggering debt of $5,000,000,000.

Boston financiers, while admitting that England may have that much money invested over here, one way and another say that it does not all constitute a debt in the sense that it is an obligation now due.

"It is not all a debt until it matures," says President Daniel G. Wing of the First National Bank.

President Wing adds that the maturing indebtedness of this country to Great Britain is nowhere near five billions.

ALL OBLIGATIONS.

George Nash of the London and Boston banking house of Brown Brothers & Company says Lloyd George referred to "all obligations in the way of time securities, would cover one billion dollars of invested English capital.

If the bullet had sufficient range to reach Wall Street, the Englishman's statement could easily be true. English purchases of railway and other securities have been among the heaviest of foreign holdings. There are, doubtless, also, large English investments in New York real estate and mercantile business. The bulk of British investment, however, would be in railway and industrial securities, where the rate of interest is higher than those offered by European securities.

The words used by the Chancellor were:

"For the moment we could neither buy nor sell, the whole world owed us money, the United States alone owing us $5,000,000,000, as we could not transact any business."

"NOT REALLY A DEBT."

Commenting today on this, President Wing of the First National said:

"The Chancellor undoubtedly means the total amount of all kinds of investment by Englishmen in this country, including stocks, bonds and other securities. They cannot really be called a debt to that amount which we owe Great Britain because it is not all a debt until it matures. The maturing indebtedness of this country to England is nowhere near that amount."

Mr. Nash of Brown Brothers & Company said:

"Chancellor Lloyd George referred to all obligations in the way of time securities, bonds and so on. This means that Great Britain is a credit nation to that extent against us.

"It probably amounts to $5,000,000,000, as he says and is mostly in railroad bonds and stocks. The railroad capitalization is the largest single investment interest in the United States and naturally the railroad bonds would be the largest proportion of Great Britain's investment here.

"Formerly, maybe twenty to twenty-five years ago, Great Britain had extensive investments here in Western farm mortgages, but the greater part of those have been cleared up, the farmers having paid off the mortgages. There are also many mortgage investments in the Eastern part of the United States, on city property and such.

"You ask if there is much English money in Texas oil lands. I think not very much. London has invested a good deal in oil lands which Englishmen are operating in other parts of the world than in this country.

"Several years ago quite a little English money was invested in New England breweries, but they did not prove a paying proposition at that time and I think the brewery investments are now very small, so far as the present credit amount is concerned."

Boat Line's Good Will Is $3,908,292

The good-will of the Eastern Steamship Corporation is valued at $3,908,292, according to a statement of assets filed in the United States District Court at Boston by Calvin Austin, former president and now ancillary receiver for the corporation in this State. Mr. Austin values the twenty-nine steamers of the corporation at $8,553,007, and five lighters and two floats at $20,000. The piers and wharves, including India and Union in Boston, are set down at $1,576,815. Cash on hand, October 31, was $165,456.

How One May 'Give a Basket' for Christmas

There are two ways to "Give a Basket."

One is to get your own basket, fill it yourself with Christmas dinner for an average family and send it to the AMERICAN for distribution.

The other way is to pay for a basket. The AMERICAN figures that to buy and fill such a Christmas basket will cost $2.

Send all the baskets you wish, one or a thousand.

Send all the money you wish, from $2 up.

Useful gifts are also welcome.

Remember—if you are sending cash, please send it in as soon as possible, so plans for expenditures may be made.

If you intend to contribute filled baskets, please notify the AMERICAN of your intention now, so that plans for distribution can be made.

Also send names of families which need such baskets, if you know of deserving cases.

Address all cash or basket notices to Christmas Editor, Boston AMERICAN, No. 82 Summer street. Please make checks payable to Boston AMERICAN. Telephone Main 5180.

LENOX DOESN'T PAY, DOUBT AS TO ITS FUTURE

A conference has been held between William M. Noble, trustee in bankruptcy for the Hotel Lenox and representatives from the Frederick Ayer estate to determine whether or not it was wise to continue running the Hotel Lenox. Mr. Noble said:

"There is no friction between myself and the Ayer estate and there will be no legal proceedings in any event. The only question under consideration is, can the hotel be made to pay."

Mr. Noble admitted that the hotel was not a paying proposition at present. The Frederick Ayer estate, which bought the physical property of the hotel at an auction sale yesterday afternoon, told Manager Brine to prepare his quests to get out. Mr. Noble, the trustee, sent him word to keep running the hotel.

The Ayer estate, the present buyers have held the first mortgage on the property. But the hotel is run by a different concern from that that owns the property, and it is of this company that Mr. Noble is trustee.

It was thought that a company with more capitol would take over the hotel. But this can't be done until the present company has its affairs cleaned up.

Marshall Field to Wed New York Girl

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—Marshall Field of Chicago and London, one of the richest men in the country, is soon to wed Miss Evelyn Marshall of New York, daughter of the late Charles H. Marshall.

Young Field, though he was educated in England, plans to take a final college year at Harvard or some other American institution and will then go into business in the United States. Young Field at twenty-one was made co-trustee of an estate of $1,000,000, when fifty years old he will inherit three-fifths of the $200,000,000 estate of his grandfather.

Confirm Capture of Guadalajara

EL PASO, Nov. 28.—Local Constitutionalists announced today that dispatches from the South confirm the reported capture of Guadalajara by Villista troops led by General Felipe Angeles. These forces, it is said, will not go to Mexico City and share in the triumphal entrance of General Villa's army into that city.

ELIZABETH A. RUDDIMAN, who weds Barre publisher tonight.

The marriage of Miss Elizabeth A. Ruddiman of Dedham to Charles Rogers, publisher and editor of a weekly paper in Barre tonight in St. Paul's Church, Dedham, is a step in the romance that commenced when "Charley" Rogers, then captain of the Dedham High School eleven, was first attracted by the young woman's cheering for the Hyde Park team, Dedham's opponent in the annual game of the season.

Mr. Rogers was introduced to his fiancee after the game by a friend and shortly after Miss Ruddiman's family moved to Dedham.

The Rev. Francis Lee Whittemore officiates at tonight's ceremony. Miss Ruddiman will have as her attendants Miss Grace Ruddiman, a sister, who will be matron of honor, and another sister, Miss Mary Ruddiman, and Miss Olive Phillips, bridesmaids. Mr. Rogers will be attended by his brother, Herbert Rogers. The ushers will be Joseph W. Rogers of Woodberry, N. J.; Dr. Frank N. Rogers of Manchester, N. H., and Dudley T. Rogers of Dartmouth College, brothers, and John Ruddiman, Jr., brother of the bride.

MOZART'S BEST WORK PLAYED BY SYMPHONY

By FREDERICK JOHNS.

Mozart's "Jupiter" symphony was given a superb performance by the Boston Symphony Orchestra yesterday afternoon. The master work of the father of modern music is not so vast in scope as some of the recent output. It is big, however, in musical ideas, in beauty and in comprehension. To hear it is to revel in musical loveliness for more than half an hour.

The soloist was Harold Bauer, a fine pianist, who brings intellectuality and technical proficiency into complete harmony. He played the G major piano concerto of Beethoven, a light, dainty, airy work, full of elegance and bristling with difficulties.

Emil von Reznicek's tone poem, "Schlemihl," was played for the first time. This is an attempt at musical biography and as a biography it succeeds as well as most similar efforts which, it is not at all. Reznicek is a worthy man pursued by misfortune in his tone poems, the misfortune usually coming in the brasses and drums. In style it is a bit of Strauss, minus the complete audacity of that glorious exponent of noise. The playing of the orchestra under Dr. Muck was worthy of the liberal commendation it received.

DREAMED OF GIRL'S BURIAL

HOULTON, Me., Nov. 28.—Ruby Riley's dream is one of the dramatic features in the Mildred Sullivan mystery. Miss Riley claims to have seen Millie in her sleep and to have seen her vanish in a spot which she described next day as Smith's woodlot. In was in this woodlot the searchers found the schoolgirl's body from the directions given by Katherine Michaud in her confession, after it had been buried sixty-five days.

Ruby Riley located the spot weeks in advance of the French girl's disclosures, through dreamland. Miss Riley was so positive her nocturnal warnings were right that she coaxed her stepfather and others to search the woods and fields for two days.

Ruby Riley is a bright, attractive girl of nineteen. She is a cousin of the murdered girl, the stepdaughter of Fred Melville, a prosperous farmer who lives six miles from Presque Isle. Melville's second wife is Mildred Sullivan's aunt and Ruby Riley's mother.

Millie's tragic disappearance made a deep impression on Melville's daughter by his first marriage. George Sullivan, father of the dead girl, works and lives on the Melville farm. He and Mr. Melville did much amateur detective work in the early part of the investigation and collected many facts of value to the government.

Ruby heard them telling about the talks they had with Dr. Dudley and D. Pelletiers and of their hunt for A. rose Bridge, whose they finally located in Houlton. She heard them discussing the clews they unearthed and retired with these thoughts uppermost in her mind each night.

TELLS OF DREAM.

"One morning Ruby had a dream that startled her. She recited it to her father and stepmother. It was about her cousin Mildred and her fate.

"I thought I was in a field near trees," said Ruby, weeks before Kate Michaud's confession threw light on the girl's grave. "Suddenly Millie appeared to me. She looked awfully sad and lonesome. She reached out her arms to me. She said, 'Ruby, why didn't you bring me my coat? Oh, Ruby, I am so cold and lonesome, bring me something to make me warm.'

"Then Millie disappeared. All she had on was her night-dress, and she seemed to go back into a hole in the grove near the fork in the road not far from her home. It seemed to be in Smith's woodlot.

"Father, I want you to search over there for Mildred. I know she is there, because I dreamed almost the same thing before. Millie must be calling to us to help her."

"I believe that dream because you remember that I dreamed that the wheel came off one team while we were driving, and it happened one day just as I had seen it in my sleep."

Ruby was not content until her father consented to hunt in the vicinity of Smith's woodlot. Mr. Melville dropped his work and went over there with a blacksmith and they hunted all one Saturday. On Sunday they went again with the victim's father, but found no trace of the body.

They discovered, when they joined the searching squad organized later as the result of the Michaud confession, that they had gone over the same ground in the hunt inspired by Ruby's dream, but the beaver had been falling fast meanwhile and even with the description furnished by Miss Michaud the searchers had hard work finding the grave.

DISCIPLES OF OCCULT.

Many of those connected with the Sullivan family are disciples of the occult. They patronize fortune tellers. The first to whom the girls' mother had recourse when she learned of her disappearance during the Presque Isle fair was a so-called crystal reader at Bangor.

Mrs. Sullivan's mother, Mrs. Clara Carpenter of Hammond plantation, still refuses to see Millie alive, although she attended her funeral. She thinks the body was that of another girl. She also looks for the return of a little son buried years ago.

It is singular how multiple incidents threatened to solve the mystery of Mildred's death and burial a few weeks before Kate Michaud's mental anguish and the pleas of her parish priest and parents forced her to make a confession.

There was the story told by Mrs. Albert Bull that Thomas Ryan, a farm hand, told her and her husband he had heard a "French flat." Ryan said he heard people there telling how the schoolgirl died at the Pelletier home on the night of September 4, and how her body was wrapped up in a fur coat and carried away at midnight in an automobile for burial in the woods.

MRS. BLAKE GETS DIVORCE FROM 'BEST MAN GOD EVER MADE'

Mrs. Joseph A. Blake who has been awarded divorce from famous New York surgeon.

BLAKE AND MACKAY MATRIMONIAL TROUBLES

July, 1912—Dr. Joseph A. Blake, noted New York surgeon, and his wife took up life anew.

July 24, 1913—Mrs. Mackay took up residence in Portland, Me., and this led to reports she was to seek divorce.

September 23, 1913—Mrs. Blake started a $1,000,000 alienation suit against Mrs. Mackay.

October 14, 1913, Mrs. Blake sued for husband for $1,000 alimony and $3,000 for other expenses.

November 12, 1913—Order for the discontinuance of Mrs. Blake's alienation suit filed in New York court.

November 21, 1913—Mrs. Blake dropped alimony suit.

February 11, 1914—Mr. and Mrs. Mackay granted mutual divorce in Paris. Mrs. Mackay awarded $100,000 a year from husband's property.

April, 1914—Dr. Joseph A. Blake took up his residence in Paris.

May 7, 1914—Mrs. Mackay opened Paris home and said hereafter she wanted the world to know her as Mrs. Alexander Duer.

WINSTED, Ct., Nov. 28.—Mrs. Katherine Blake, who, as Hile over a year ago, filed a $1,000,000 alienation suit against Mrs. Clarence H. Mackay and later withdrew her charges, has been granted a divorce here from Dr. Joseph A. Blake, the noted New York surgeon, whom she once called "the best man God ever made," it became known today.

The decree, which was given for desertion, was granted on recommendation of Judge Addis of the New Milford Probate Court, who took the testimony in the case as a committee. No mention was made in the decision regarding alimony or of the custody of the two Blake children.

Society the world over was startled when Mrs. Blake filed her alienation suit against Mrs. Mackay. Just previous to the filing of this suit Mrs. Blake and her husband separated after twenty-three years of life together. Friends declare that her alienation charges came in the love of Dr. Blake for his wife to wane and die out.

RECONCILIATION FAILS.

"Dr. Blake is the best man God ever made, a man of the highest ideals and a most devoted husband," declared Mrs. Blake a few days after she had instituted her suit against Mrs. Mackay, when her son, Joseph A. Blake, Jr., a student at Yale, tried to bring about a reconciliation.

At that same time Dr. Blake tendered his resignation as surgeon of the Presbyterian Hospital in New York, which position he had held for five years, and as professor of surgery in the College of Physicians and Surgeons, with which he had been connected more than twenty-five years.

Mrs. Blake obtained an order permitting her to file the papers in her action October 14, and the text of her complaint, dated February 21, was then made public.

She charged Mrs. Mackay with "wicked and wrongful acts, blandishments, flatteries and seductions," by reason of which her husband was estranged from her and his "affection, regard and love" were destroyed.

MACKAYS DIVORCED.

Renewed interest was added to the matrimonial troubles of the two families when on February 11, 1914, Mr. and Mrs. Mackay were granted a mutual divorce in Paris. Mrs. Mackay was given the custody of her children and $100,000 a year income. Two months after she had filed the suit against Mrs. Mackay, Mrs. Blake withdrew her action. The monetary consideration was $1 and other valuable property. Shortly after filing her alienation suit Mrs. Blake sued her husband for $1,000 a month alimony and asked $3,000 for other expenses incurred and $5,000 for counsel fees. She put the surgeon's income at between $75,000 and $100,000 yearly. This suit also never came to trial.

After this alimony suit was filed Dr. Blake went to France and has made his home there ever since. When the war broke out he took up his duties as a volunteer in the American ambulance corps in Paris.

Mrs. Blake was Miss Catherine Ketcham and is well known in New York society circles. There are two children, Joseph A. Blake, Jr., a student at Yale, and Frank H. Blake, who is thirteen.

GIRLS ACCUSE POLICE OFFICER IN CAMBRIDGE

Charges made by four or five young Cambridge girls against a patrolman of that city have been brought to the attention of District Attorney William A. Corcoran of Middlesex county and Mayor Gaston of Cambridge by the Rev. Daniel Evans, a professor at Andover Theological School.

District Attorney Corcoran has promised to investigate. Dr. Evans obtained the information he gave the District Attorney through the investigations of the Civic Survey, a movement instituted for the purpose of discovering just what conditions in Cambridge are, with respect to morality, housing, etc.

The girls who figure in the case are said to be young, and some are believed to be under eighteen years of age. They have made affidavits implicating the patrolman, it is said.

They are all said to live in the Lower Port, a part of Cambridge through the centre of which Portland street runs. The patrolman is said at one time to have had a beat in this part of the city.

"Dr. Evans' story is not that of the average muck-raker by any means," was District Attorney Corcoran's comment. "He came into investigation entirely in the interest of good citizenship."

The Civic Survey of Cambridge was undertaken along the same lines as the survey in Pittsburgh undertaken by the Russell Sage foundation.

Mayor Calls for Big 'Boom Boston' Electric Signs

"Boom Boston" in electric letters is to shine for 100 feet along the Boston & Maine track just outside the North Station. Mayor Curley announces that the Edison Electric Illuminating Company will provide lights and current for a sign 100 feet long and 40 feet high bearing this slogan and also the words, "Second Lowest Tax Rate in the State," and "Lowest Death Rate in the State." The city's only expense, according to the Mayor, will be the erection of the sign.

So visitors from New York will know Boston when they reach it by train, the Mayor is planning to erect similar signs, on a smaller scale, along the Boston & Albany in the Back Bay.

MRS. COREY'S MAID HELD AS GERMAN SPY

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—The Lusitania, arriving at this port more than twelve hours late, brought many persons of prominence, some of whom told of experiences in and near the European war zone.

Mrs. William Ellis Corey, formerly Mabelle Gilman, related how her chateau in France had been turned into a hospital for British and French soldiers wounded at the battle of Mons.

"We remained at our chateau during the early part of the war and even after the front gate had been blown away by a German shell," said Mrs. Corey. "Just before the battle of Mons I discovered that one of my maids was a German spy, and she was turned over to the French authorities and imprisoned. Then our chateau was turned into a hospital for the wounded French and British soldiers. My servants assisted in nursing them, and when we went to Paris we took the wounded, seventy in all, with us in automobiles."

James Gordon Bennett was among the Lusitania's passengers. "I am never interviewed, and I don't know how long I will remain here. Say—no idea," he said in reply to questions.

It was learned later that Mr. Bennett had come over hurriedly on business and planned to go back on the return trip of the Lusitania. He was not accompanied by his bride, the former Baroness De Reuter.

Charles Duveen, the Fifth avenue art dealer, brought the cheering report that more of the priceless art treasures of Belgium had escaped injury in the war than reports indicated.

WOMAN TELLS HOW BEAUTY IS WON BY LOVE

WOMAN'S RULES FOR LOVE MADE BEAUTY

This will help more than lotions, soaps and massage creams. Women who fear "old age," who see themselves becoming wallflowers, should think and act health.

Love all you meet, see or hear of.

Don't wait for others to love you—you'll wait forever and remain old maids.

Mrs. Alice B. Haner of Portland, Oregon, in addressing the Boston Metaphysical club how her "love cure" had made her healthy, happy and at least eight years ago was practically an invalid.

"I have seen scores of cases, a great many young women required to health by failing in love and getting in love with an individual can bring about such a change how much greater a change would the great love of mankind and love of life bring about!

"Your face and body are a canvas upon which your life is painted and this canvas the more beautiful your thoughts, the more forms and faces God, Mrs. Haner thought of ill health, envy, malice, hatred, annoyance, fear, jealousy, worry, impatience, pride, is registered on your face and body."

LONDON IN FEAR OF SUBMARINE RAIDS

The French official communique issued today states that heavy French guns have inflicted serious losses on the German artillery in the Champagne district. It also tells of the loss of another airship by the Germans, a biplane carrying three aviators which was brought to earth by French gunners in Belgium.

The Russian official statement of the clash in Poland says that the Germans have been driven back from the Bzura River, and that the Russians have reached Goubin, southeast of Plock. The German forces that advanced to the Bzura comprised the left wing of the Kaiser's army in Poland and for a time seriously threatened Warsaw. This danger has been eliminated by the fierce attacks of the Russian reinforcements that were sent from Warsaw and Novo Georgievsk.

DRIVEN BACK BY CAVALRY.

The official statement says the Russian cavalry forced the Germans to retreat between Brzezny and Glowno, respectively east and northeast of Lodz, and the Russian troops attacked the Germans in the region of Sgierz and Strykow.

Unofficial reports state that the Germans are suffering heavy losses in this region.

The Warsaw correspondent of the Bourse Gazette, who telegraphs of General von Mackensen's plight, says:

"Latest reports show that General von Mackensen is still battling furiously, with 100,000 of his men surrounded in the neighborhood of Brzezny and Strykow. Russian guns and mitrailleuses are pouring a fearful fire into the living German citadel, and few of von Mackensen's army will be able to hack their way through the Russians' iron circle.

"Before the disastrous battle of Lodz the Kaiser wired General von Hindenberg: 'Distinguish yourself. The eyes of the world are on you.' He failed to carry out the behest of his master."

The official statement sums up the situation between the Vistula and Warthe as "favorable to the Russian arms," while farther south, where the Austrians and Germans are co-operating on the Cracow-Czestochowa front, further successes have been gained on the lower Sreniawa River. It is here that the Teutonic allies are fighting to hold back the Russians that threaten Cracow from the north. Russian forces that worked their way through the Carpathian foothills after Przemysl was invested are now only thirty-five miles east of Cracow. They have also crossed the Raba River, the last big stream impeding their advance on Cracow from the east and southeast.

GERMANS FACE 4,000,000 RUSSIANS.

Reports from Berlin today on the situation in Poland state that the Russians are straining every effort to put all their available men in the conflict that has now entered its third week. Military experts declare that the Russian leaders have sent at least 4,000,000 men to the front in their attempt to inflict a crushing defeat upon the German army.

Despite the vast masses of men that the Russians have hurled forward, it is asserted here that the Germans have stood their ground about Lodz and Lowicz and inflicted tremendous losses upon the attacking enemy.

It is admitted, however, that the Germans have gained no advantage in the battle that can be called a complete victory.

Though the Austro-German forces in Poland are far outnumbered by the Russians the Berlin military experts assert that the superiority of morale and training of the German troops and their mobility will offset the numerical strength of the Czar's troops.

ALLIES PREPARE TO ATTACK FOE.

In the Franco-Belgian field of strife there are signs pointing to a renewal of activity by the allies, according to Paris dispatches which state that the lines of the allies' between Dixmude and Ypres in Belgium have been stiffened by the arrival of reinforcements. More than one hundred guns, some of them removed from forts upon the Mediterranean and the Spanish frontier have been rushed into Belgium.

News fom German sources forecasts an important movement toward the channel coast. A correspondent on the Belgian frontier writes that the German naval staff has arrived at Bruges from Antwerp. An aeroplane squadron has been brought from its base near Ghent and is now stationed at Bruges to assist in the surveillance of the channel.

The London Daily News has advices from Rotterdam stating that the great movement of German troops in Eastern Belgium for which preparations have been in progress for the last week is now under way. The population in the neighborhood has been informed that no civilian will be allowed to travel by train during the coming fortnight.

Numerous troop trains, most of them containing marines and bluejackets, have passed through Louvain toward Brussels and the coast. They were followed by a score of freight trains loaded with material for building pontoon bridges.

Advices from The Hague say that the Swiss Federal Assembly has ordered all foreign aviators flying over Swiss soil to be shot down without further orders.

The battleship Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse, mentioned with the Hertha in the Petrograd report as having been sunk, is distinct from the converted cruiser of the same name which was sunk some time ago by the British cruiser Highflyer.

The battleship Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse was of 11,130 tons, launched in 1899, with a complement of 658 men, and carrying four 9.4-inch guns and fourteen 5.9-inch guns.

The Hertha meant is apparently the training ship of that name, a vessel of 5,650 tons carrying two 8.2-inch guns, six 5.9-inch guns and smaller rifles. She carries 632 men.

Cairo, Egypt, dispatches admit the capture of Fort El Arisch by the Turks. It was stated, however, that the only guns there were muzzle-loaders and the occupation of the post by the Ottoman troops is of no importance. Turkish claims that they would soon control the Suez Canal were officially denied. British officials claim that outside of a few Turks at Gatia they have been unable to locate any of the enemy's forces.

LONDON FEARS SUBMARINES.

New submarine raids by the Germans, in which they passed the Straits of Dover and sunk three more British ships, have caused fresh alarm in London, which the authorities are seeking to allay.

American submarine builders have been called upon by Great Britain to provide "sea weasels" needed to carry out Winston Churchill's promise to the English people that the "German navy will be dug out of the Kiel Canal like rats."

In addition to the large contract said to have been placed with Charles M. Schwab of the Fore River concern, the Electric Boat Company of New York has received a $10,000,000 contract for submarines, according to information from reliable sources today. The job is a rush order. The sub-contracts have already been let and a score of the most powerful submarines ever built will be turned out to the British government in record time.

The order came, it is said, as a result of the growing clamor among the English people for some adequate reprisal for Germany's daring under-sea raids. The Admiralty decided the most effective means will be to secure as soon as possible an overwhelming flotilla of submarines.

Passengers on the Lusitania, in New York today, declared the battleship Audacious, sunk off the Irish coast, has been raised and placed in dry dock at Belfast, indicating that this chief of British losses, whose displacement was nearly twice that of any other ship lost, may yet be retrieved.

CITY HOSPITAL LEADS NATION, SAYS SHUMAN

A. Shuman, president of the board of trustees of the Boston City Hospital, in discussing the hospital's work today, declared that the institution is the best equipped and best managed municipal hospital in the country. He added:

"Superintendent Hurd of the Johns Hopkins Hospital at Baltimore has said to me that superintendents who desire to get suggestions and information as to the best methods, used to come to Johns Hopkins, but now they come to the Boston City Hospital as their mecca.

"It is not true that we cannot obtain nurses for the training school; for we have the full quota of nurses that we need for the care of the patients. Moreover, the training school, under the direction of Miss Nichols, is considered one of the best.

"The ampitheatre is up-to-date, and is kept up to the standard of the best of modern operating rooms. The buildings are renovated and remodelled from season to season as fast as appropriations will permit. All the old buildings have been made fireproof within the past two years, and are in sanitary and first-class condition. All the new buildings are fireproof. The appurtenances and appliances throughout are as good as can be procured either here or abroad.

"It is one of Boston's best and model institutions, of which the citizens are justly proud, and the patients who are treated there are loud in its praise.

"Mayor Curley has commented most favorably upon the management and its efficiency for the public good, and is deeply interested in the institution."

Herrick Leaves Paris for Home

PARIS, Nov. 28.—Cordial expressions of esteem marked the departure here today of Myron T. Herrick, the retiring American ambassador, who left for Havre on a special car accompanied by members of his family. They will sail for New York on the steamer Rochambeau. Sir Austin Lee, acting for the British ambassador, handed to Mr. Herrick a letter from Sir Edward Grey, the British Foreign Minister, thanking him for his services in behalf of British subjects.

Malden Football School Star Ill

Austin Trafton, the boy who played centre on the Malden High School team against Medford Thanksgiving Day and then collapsed, has pneumonia, according to Dr. E. J. Hollis and Dr. C. E. Prior, who are attending him, but his condition is favorable. Faculty Manager Bentley of the Malden High School said today: "Before the game Thanksgiving day the boys, Trafton included, said they felt well and able to play. We have been careful in this regard."

Thaw Gives Chickens to Manchester Poor

MANCHESTER, N. H., Nov. 28.—Harry K. Thaw, who is passing the Winter in Manchester, has contributed 100 pounds of chicken to the City Missionary Society to distribute among the worthy poor. Mr. and Mrs. Roger G. Sullivan have donated twenty-five pounds.

WAR PERSONALS AND SIDELIGHTS

ITALY MAY FIGHT.

LONDON, Nov. 28.—A diplomat here is quoted as saying that Italy only awaits the favorable moment to join the allies.

250-MILE CHEER.

LONDON, Nov. 28.—A correspondent says that in celebration of the naval victory off Chili, the German army from Flanders to Switzerland at a certain hour on the night of November 5, gave three cheers for the navy, and the cheers rolled the whole length of the 250-mile battle line.

MUFFS FOR SOLDIERS.

ROTTERDAM, Nov. 28.—A correspondent says the German officers ask German women to send their muffs for soldiers to use in keeping their hands warm in the trenches.

SCHOOLBOYS ENROLLED.

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 28.—Twelve thousand schoolboys between the age of fifteen and seventeen have been enrolled in Berlin. They will take the field in the Spring.

GUNS ON CHURCH SPIRES.

PETROGRAD, Nov. 28.—The Russians say the Austrians have mounted guns on cathedral spires in Cracow.

COUNT BOBRINSKY DEAD.

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 28.—A dispatch received here states that Count Bobrinsky, the Russian Governor-General of Galicia, is dead of apoplexy.

War on Militarism, Declares Poincare

PARIS, Nov. 28.—When President Poincare conferred upon General Joffre the Medaille Militaire, the highest honor that can be conferred on a general, the former said: "Indecisive vict and a precarious peace would expose tomorrow the genius of France to fresh insults from that refined barbarism which assumes the mask of science the better to stake the instincts of domination."

A Former Mayor of Boston (now dead) Sends a Message From Heaven

Sir Oliver Lodge's assertion that communication with the departed actually occurs meets startling confirmation. —See Sunday's BOSTON AMERICAN

Tomorrow's SUNDAY AMERICAN will contain a special article on

Jesse Pomeroy's First Sunday in Church

By vote, Gov. Walsh and his Council have made it possible for this man, who has lived in a solitary cell for over 38 years, to come out of that cell for the first time tomorrow and attend divine service.

The AMERICAN will publish some of the recent letters written by Pomeroy, also parts of the sermon which Pomeroy will hear and other interesting events connected with his long confinement.

The Mayor of Boston comments vigorously upon the fact that girls in our Boston factories go mad—or worse—because they are miserably underpaid by wealthy employers.

The Boston SUNDAY AMERICAN will publish an illustrated article giving the results of an investigation conducted by this paper into the actual conditions that exist in Boston factories and how employes are living.

Professor Barrett Wendell of Harvard Suggests That

The United States May Be Another Belgium

The article appeared in the Harvard Crimson. It is such a forceful article in favor of a big army and big navy that we will publish it in tomorrow's SUNDAY AMERICAN, so that Every one may read it.

RUSH TO JOIN CHRISTMAS FUND

additional Christmas cheer to the young folks.

Very sincerely yours,

LOUIS C. PAGE.

Mr. Page comes back with an offer of 1,000 books. That's what the Christmas Editor calls "coming back" to some effect.

Let no one be afraid to send books or toys or gifts of clothing, all to go into the Christmas baskets, to gladden the hearts of those who need them.

Mayor Curley said today that the charity ball which the Tammany Club of Ward 17 is to give in Symphony Hall on Wednesday evening, December 16, should net $5,000 for the "Give-a-Basket" fund. His Honor, in first announcing the charity ball early in the week, said he figured at least $2,500 would be netted, but today he doubles that estimate. He is getting reports from club members as to the demand for tickets at one dollar per ticket, and the financial prospect looks rosier to him with every passing hour.

SPONTANEOUS RESPONSE.

The Christmas Editor is struck with the wide and spontaneous response which the "Give-a-Basket" plan is getting from all kinds of people. Men, women and children are contributing. Many men, obviously wage earners of limited means, bring or send in dollar contributions. They are in the great mass of workers who make up the bulk of Greater Boston life. On the other hand, some of the best known people in the community, leaders in one activity or another, are represented in the growing list of contributions. Men of prominence, like Galen L. Stone, Henry Bingham, Sherman L. Whipple and others, endorse the fund in word and gift. Women like Mrs. Lars Anderson; girls of wealth and position, like Miss Esther Slater—these contribute. The father is having a hard time. He has been out of work a lot this last year. They have seven small children. The oldest is thirteen. I know they would be made glad with a basket, or anything you could send to them. They will have a very poor Christmas without help.

A WIDOW'S PLEA:

Another appealing letter reads:

Christmas Editor, AMERICAN:

I am a poor widow woman and my children all left me. Please send me a Christmas basket. I will be very thankful."

OPTIMISTICS.

The aggregate crop production of the United States this year was 9.4 per cent. greater than for 1913 and it exceeded the ten-year average by 2.3 per cent.

Emergency currency is fast being retired all over the country. One estimate of the amount still outstanding in Chicago, where $27,000,000 was issued, is but $9,000,000.

* * *

According to a Paris report, Grand Duke Michael of Russia has presented the French army with 1,000,000 pairs of shoes, which were made at Webster, Mass., at an average price of $3 a pair.

* * *

Among steel orders recently placed in this country was one for 15,000 tons of plates to be shipped to Australia.

* * *

The Department of Agriculture expects that the wheat acreage of this country next year will exceed anything in its history.

* * *

Panama Canal traffic has been heavy. In about ten weeks grain shipments through it amounted to 5,179,934 bushels, while nitrate shipments totaled nearly 100,000 tons. These were all cast-bound shipments.

* * *

For October the combined net earnings available for dividends of the Massachusetts Gas Companies increased 9.96 per cent. over those of the corresponding 1913 month.

* * *

* * *

It is reported that a Chicago representative of the British government has received an order to buy blankets to the extent of $5,000,000.

Demand for Embroidery Outfit Grows

The way the AMERICAN'S Embroidery Outfit supply is dwindling indicates that thousands of women and girls who planned to take advantage of this splendid offer will be disappointed unless they act quickly and begin to clip the Embroidery coupons without further delay.

The only way to be SURE to get YOURS is by starting to clip the coupon TODAY—right away.

Each Outfit consists of over 200 transfer patterns, one beaded embroidery hoop, ten skeins of embroidery silk and floss in assorted colors, together with a pamphlet of instructions showing how to do embroidery stitches. All you have to do to secure this outfit is to clip six coupons (or consecutive dates) from the AMERICAN page of the daily AMERICAN bearing or send them, with sixty-eight cents, to the AMERICAN Pattern Department, No. 5 Winthrop square, or to any newsdealer (no matter where you live), who sells the daily AMERICAN (coupon does not appear in the Sunday edition). FIVE CENTS EXTRA BY MAIL.

Did you get one of the FREE Embroidery Patterns the AMERICAN is giving to its girl and women readers?

If not, better call on your newsdealer without delay and tell him you want one.

The free pattern he will give you is a hot-iron transfer doily design, size ten and one-half inches, and is an example of the more than 200 different designs included in the AMERICAN'S Embroidery Pattern Outfit.

thing, too. Bothe were directed to the widow's home, and the joint and several result was that the family had a good dinner and has prospects of more help.

PRAISES THE FUND.

Ex-Mayor Charles S. Baxter of Medford, who practices law in Boston, sends a check and says nice things about the fund in the following letter:

Christmas Editor AMERICAN:

Dear Sir—I enclose a check for $2 for a basket dinner. I think work of this kind by the Boston AMERICAN is the most praiseworthy work to be done in our community. Your willingness to undertake this work cannot be too greatly appreciated. It is a aid; and in the right direction. All success to you.

Sincerely yours,

CHARLES S. BAXTER.

ANNE MORGAN RIGHT.

Mrs. Henry A. Krey agrees with Miss Anne Morgan that home charity must not be overlooked. She writes

Tuesday, Nov. 24, 1914.

Christmas Editor AMERICAN:

I think you are doing something very practical and worthy in supplying baskets to Boston's needy people, and enclose my check for $5 to buy two baskets. Anne Morgan's advice about not forgetting those at home ought not to be overlooked.

Yours very truly,

MRS. HENRY ARTHUR KREY.

261 Washington street, Boston.

WORTHY FAMILY.

The Christmas Editor is receiving many suggestions from correspondents as to homes where Christmas baskets are needed. Here is a sample letter:

Christmas Editor AMERICAN:

I am sending in the name of a family I know who would like to have a Christmas basket. The father is having a hard time. He has been out of work a lot this last year. They have seven small children. The oldest is thirteen. I know they would be made glad with a basket, or anything you could send to them. They will have a very poor Christmas without help.

ARMY AND NAVY TEAMS BATTLE IN BIG ANNUAL GRIDIRON GAME TODAY

ALL-STARS IN CHARITY FOOTBALL GAME AGAINST THE CARLISLE INDIANS

ALL-STARS PLAY INDIAN ELEVEN AT FENWAY PARK

THE LINEUP.

ALL STARS.		CARLISLE.
E. Pendleton, left end		Mercer
Hunt Fish, Huntington, l.t.		Bird
B. Bennett, Parkinson, l.g.	c.c.	Martel
Pat Grant, Hitchcock, r.g.		Hunt Eagle
P. Withington, Huntington, r.t.		Morris
Blagden, L. Withington, l.e.		Bush
Kennard, Wadsworth, r.e.		Weimas Ranco
Gardiner, Wigglesworth, q.b.		Winette, Lassa
Mahon, J. Wendell, l.h.b.		Looks, Yeomud
Snow, Phillips, Minot, r.h.b.		Pratt
Angell, P. Wendell, f.b.		Booker

It is a very easy matter to form a football team, or a baseball team, or a hockey team, or any kind of a team and call it "All Stars," but not often is it an all-star team except in name. But the "All Stars" who will line up against the Carlisle Indians at Fenway Park this afternoon at 2 o'clock are really and truly "All Stars."

One has only to glance at the line-up to prove the assertion. Not only are the players stars of the football world, but they have been coached by the star coach of the period—Percy Haughton of Harvard, to be sure, Mr. Haughton has not had the time to drill his charges the way he drilled his Harvard team, but the players themselves believe they have learned enough from the celebrated coach to be able to defeat the crafty Redmen, with something to spare.

Eddie Mahan, the sensational Harvard back, will take part in the game, and he and his teammate, Bradlee, are expected to create something of a havoc among the Indians. Also there will be Gardner, the former Harvard quarterback, one of the best givers of signals that ever wore the Crimson uniform. Back of the line will also appear in one or more periods of the game such well-known football stars as Wendell of Harvard, Phillips of Yale, and Win Snow of Dartmouth.

KENNARD AND FELTON.

In the line, two great kickers of former Harvard teams—Wm. Kennard and Sam Felton—will go in as ends on the "All-Star" team. For tackles there are Blagden and Ham Fish, the captain, both stars in their day at Harvard. The guards will be two of the great Withington family of athletes, and Ray Bennett in the centre will be Pat Grant.

The subs of the "All Stars" are stars, too. Among those who will be in uniform and ready to go when called upon are: Hitchcock of Harvard, Campbell of Harvard, Wigglesworth of Harvard, Dana of Harvard, Minot of Harvard, and Wadsworth of Williams. In short, if some of the old-timers find things too strenuous, there will be plenty of substitutes to take their places.

INDIANS IN SHAPE.

The Indians played in Providence against Brown on Thanksgiving Day and were defeated. But that is all right. They are used to it, and they expect to show the "All Stars" a thing or two today. Some of the players were a bit hunged up as a result of the game with Brown, so two players, celebrated in their day, will be found in the line-up this afternoon. One is Lubo, the noted quarterback, and the other is Lone Star, a lineman. Lubo was a member of the Carlisle team that defeated Harvard at the Stadium in 1907. Both have been coaching the Indians this season.

The advance sale of tickets has been large, and it is expected that there will be a large crowd out to see the game, in spite of the counter attraction at the Boston National League grounds, where the Oak Park team of Chicago will line up against Everett High.

Harvard Soccer Team Plays Springfield

Harvard plays Springfield Y. M. C. A. a soccer this afternoon on Soldiers' Field. This is the second meeting of the season between these teams, Harvard winning the first game by the score of 4 to 2.

The Crimson will be represented with the following line-up this afternoon: Feeney, g.; J. M. Jennings, l.f.b.; Chubb, r.f.b.; Fenn, l.h.b.; O'Neill, c.h.b.; Medina, r.h.b.; Weld, l.o.f.; Blackmur, l.f.f.; Baker, c.f.; J. C. Jennings, r.i.f.; Norris, r.o.f.

White and Duffy May Battle in Buffalo

Jimmy Duffy, the Lockport, N. Y., lightweight, who recently held Freddie Welsh to a ten-round draw, may be matched to box Charley White ten rounds in Buffalo the third week in December. Nate Lewis, manager of White, received an offer from the promoter. A matter of $1,000 is the pitch. White has three matches on and already is in training.

Final Interclass Game on Monday

The football teams of the classes of 1916 and 1917 will battle for the interclass championship at Harvard as a result of the preliminary games played, the juniors losing to the seniors, 3 to 0, and the sophomores defeating the freshmen, 20 to 0.

Enwright Returns.

E. C. Stevens New President of Belmont

At the annual meeting of the Belmont Spring Country Club, held at the clubhouse, the following officers were elected: President, E. C. Stevens of Lexington, succeeding Henry Hornblower, who has been president of the club since its inception five years ago; vice-president, Colonel E. C. Benton, of Belmont; second vice-president, H. D. Foss of Cambridge; third vice-president, Dr. A. C. Peters of Cambridge; fourth vice-president, W. L. Underwood of Belmont; secretary, Edward C. Stone of Lexington; treasurer, W. E. Robinson of Winchester; executive committee, W. H. Burgess of Lexington, A. E. Bliss of Malden, Bowen Tufts of Medford.

George Carter Gives De Oro Hard Match

Displaying the best form since his engagement at Miah Murray's Imperial Rooms, Alfred De Oro, the world's three cushion billiard champion, closed his stay in Boston by defeating George Carter of the B. A. A. in one of the neatest games played this week. The score—50 to 19—was not begin to tell the tale. Carter was in superb form and led in the earlier innings. Twice the Unicorn member piled up six point runs, and in his third inning he gave a startling exhibition by running up seven points, the best mark reached by any player, not excepting the champion himself. In the afternoon game De Oro played Joe Hall and won by a score of 50 to 36.

Weeghman Fails to Get Eddie Plank

CHICAGO, Nov. 28.—President Weeghman of the Chicago Federals today declared that negotiations for Edward Plank, former star pitcher of the Philadelphia Athletics, had come to an end because of the big salary demanded by the left-handed twirler.

"I would like to see Plank in a Chicago Federal uniform," said Weeghman, "but his terms are too strong, and I have practically ended all negotiations."

Senators Released.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—Manager Griffith of the Washington club notified American League officials he had released players Cashion and Williams, pitchers Wilson, a catcher, and Henry and Holland, infielders, to the Minneapolis American Association club, for Henri Rondeau, an outfielder.

Lexington-Concord Off.

The annual football game between Lexington and Concord which was postponed twice will not be played this year. It had been planned to play it off this afternoon at Lexington, but no definite agreement could be made and so the game was finally dropped.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 28.—Somewhere in the neighborhood of thirty thousand very nice people were expected to be within the confines of Franklin Park when the Army and Navy lineups lined up football battle this afternoon in their twenty-fifth tussle to decide the championship of the Army and Navy.

It was also expected that the people who are mainly interested, the generals and colonels, and diplomats and other desirable folks, would be considerably moistened before the riot was over. Since the President let on to be here the weather authorities in Washington felt that they had a free hand and they came across with the announcement that we could expect raw, chilly, damp weather with an unusually bright prospect of a brisk rain.

The President announced that he could not come as he would not attend any social functions this season. A number of army and navy folk tried to convince him that it was merely a football game and not a social function, but he seems to have footed at them. Whatever else may be said of him it is evident that the President is wise to a social function when he lamps it.

SOCIETY FOLK PRESENT.

Still it is figured that the game will worry along without him. Secretary Daniels of the Navy and Garrison of the Army are on hand and supporting them are all the loose military and naval officers on the eastern seaboard. A flock of society people from New York also came down to help the society people of Philadelphia fill up every seat not taken by the two services. Seemingly Mr. Wilson was wrong about this being a social function.

Swarms of younger Army and Navy officers and their wives and friends began rushing in here as early as yesterday morning and at once set about the important matter of betting as much as they could afford or a little bit more.

ARMY 5-4 FAVORITE.

This betting is not like the betting on any other game. These fellows who are mainly on hand and who are willing to wager a part of a month's pay on their service team just for the sake of loyalty and it is no use to tell them they are foolish, because they know it.

Consequently the odds are not what they would be in any other battle where the advance expert opinion gives one team such a decided edge. This was supposed that the Army would be a two to one favorite, but the alumni of dear old Annapolis were so willing to bet that the odds were five to four this morning.

Much of this confidence is probably due to the fact that they put it over the great and sovereign State of Delaware and brought their team through, contrary to the statute in such cases made and provided. The game, as it has practically ended the beginning, a large and rambunctious goat. You might not think so, but goats are classed as cattle, and Delaware has quarantined against cattle because of the hoof and mouth disease.

BRING GOAT ALONG.

The middies were warned that they would not be permitted to send their animal through Delaware, and as the team was planning to go through Delaware and a mascot should go with a team, it began to look a distressing situation. The power of the federal government was invoked and a compromise was reached by which the goat was allowed to go through the State provided he did not leave the train.

The goat said there was nothing in Delaware to interest him or any other intelligent animal, and he was quite willing to stay on the train. Thus the matter was happily arranged.

Both teams arrived yesterday about midday and established themselves at expensive food palaces, which became thereby and at once the headquarters of the respective services. Gold braid and brass buttons began flashing around in the corridors, and presently the streets of the business section followed suit. The blue flags of the navy and the gray and gold and black of the army appeared at windows and out of windows and in show cases and in the hands of the hawkers.

TOWN IS DECORATED.

Broad street was especially nifty. A number of sections of poles and connecting peristyle of white was erected to celebrate the convention of the American Federation of Labor, which recently discontinued.

Without cracking a smile, Philadelphia decked these arches in the colors of the military scheme and went along welcoming and honoring without ever breaking step. Yet it is frequently argued that Philadelphia is without a sense of humor.

There was also quite the usual amount of excitement about the ticket scalpers last night and this morning. "Vigorous steps" against them were the general order of the day, which has been a grand old custom ever since the first game.

FIGHT SPECULATORS.

This year some one in authority unearthed and put in operation a profound scheme for foiling the wily speculators. The University of Pennsylvania, which has charge of the tickets, has retained a flock of private detectives. These gentlemen are even now supposed to be snooping around the corridors of the hotels and bar rooms on the job of foiling the speculator. How will they do it? You may ask. Ah, there's where the profound stuff comes in—when they see a speculator making a sale they will sneak up behind him with a lead pencil and a piece of paper and make a note of the number of the ticket. A duplicate ticket will be issued and sold, and the purchaser of one for it. If they should nail some captain, respectfully presenting some admiral with a ticket and then have the admiral chucked out, it would do much to promote the gayety of an otherwise too solemn occasion.

Senator Tillman is in this city investigating armor plate. There is some talk of taking him to see the man who delivered his speech.

The ticket speculators are remaining calm and insistent just the same. It is admitted that they have "more than 200 tickets" and we guess that is right. Three dollars is the list price, but no ticket leaves a speculators hands for less than $16. Those in the middleld stands are sold at $20 each. The speculators feel no qualms about getting these prices and apparently their feelings are justified.

Fifteen Brown Men Receive Their 'B's

PROVIDENCE, Nov. 28.—Fifteen football men were awarded the varsity "B" and assistant managers were chosen for the football, baseball, track, swimming and gym teams at a meeting of the athletic board of the Brown A. A. The letters were awarded to those men who played half of the total playing time against Harvard or Yale. The number of letters awarded is the smallest since 1911, when the same number was given out.

F. A. Bailey, Jr., of Providence, was elected football manager for 1915. The men who were awarded the "B" for football are as follows: 1915, Captain S. K. Mitchell of Bradford, Pa.; 1916, R. Gottshall of Bluffton, O.; E. J. Staff of Brockton, Mass.; 1916, W. R. L. McHee of Providence; H. F. Hoffman of Providence, A. G. Maxwell of Shatington, Pa.; J. M. Bailey of Scudsburg, Ct.; 1917, L. S. Fraser of Providence; R. B. Ward of Newark, N. J.; J. Murphy of New Bedford, Mass.; 1918, M. Parnum of Georgiaville, L. R. Card of Detroit; H. B. Gardner of Cleveland and H. J. Hingeveny of New York city. Manager Bailey of Attleboro was awarded the "B" on the hat.

Iowa State College After Capt. Brickley

AMES, Ia., Nov. 28.—Charles E. Brickley, captain of the Harvard football team, has been invited to coach football at Iowa State College here for the East is hopes of being able to induce Brickley to accept a position as coach of the Ames football eleven next season. Football at Ames has been in a more or less chaotic condition for several years, and it is believed that if Brickley can be secured as coach the Ames iron game will surely result.

Members of the athletic board have already discussed the question of salary, and are in a position to offer Brickley $2,500 for next season, with a contract stipulation that the salary shall be materially increased in case he proves the anticipated success.

'HURRY-UP' YOST BIG CHARACTER AMONG COACHES

Many amusing stories are told concerning "Hurry-Up" Yost, the great Michigan coach, to show that he is a hurry-up person in everything he does and that he has absolutely no patience with delays.

Once upon a time Yost invited a friend to visit him at a place where he was camping. The friend arrived in due time and Yost met him with a buggy and proceeded to drive the friend to the camp. Yost drove his horses like a fellow his footballers—fast and still faster.

In due course of time the buggy reached a small creek and Yost, instead of driving a half-mile for a bridge, drove across the little stream. It was a time-saving process. The horses were going at a great clip. The buggy wheels struck a rock and the buggy nearly upset. Yost's friend was thrown out of the buggy and into the creek.

Yost, who had been busily engaged in talking and driving at the same time, was not conscious of the absence of his friend until he reached the other side of the creek. Then he pulled his horses down to a jog, looked back and saw his friend wallowing in a deep pool in the creek.

"Hey, whatinell you delaying things for, anyway?" yelled Yost. "Hustle up and get out of that creek. Can't wait all day."

TOOK SAME FRIEND HUNTING.

On another occasion Yost invited the same friend to go hunting with him. After Yost and his friend had tramped about twenty miles through the snow-covered forest the friend was reduced to a state of utter exhaustion.

"Let's start back," suggested the friend.

"Start back?" exclaimed Yost. "Why we've just got started. Come on. About four miles up there's some rabbits."

"Nix," answered his friend. "I can't go any farther. I'm all in."

"All right," answered Yost. "You lay down and rest in the snow. I'll be back presently."

And Yost took off, leaving his exhausted friend lying in the deep snow. In about an hour or so Yost came back, loaded with game, and without a word of inquiry as to how his friend felt, said:

"Well, let's hustle back, now. It isn't five miles—only about ten miles in a direct route."

IS PHYSICAL WONDER.

Yost is a physical wonder. Years of outdoor life have hardened his muscles and made him a man of iron. He can endure more physical strain than the majority of the strongest athletes.

Yost, as a football coach, is a driver. No man ever shirked while working for Yost. Every man who works for him must give his best right down to the last ounce. But Yost never asks more of his men than he can do himself.

Often it has happened that Yost, when coaching some new men, has demonstrated himself just what he wanted done.

Yost once had a green guard whom he tried to drill into hitting a line so as to make an opening for plays. The guard failed to turn the trick in the way that Yost wanted. He was opposed by a husky scrub and add something to the scrub the scrub line being "pretty tough."

To Retain Kelley as Holy Cross Coach

WORCESTER, Nov. 28.—Luke Kelley is expected to be retained as coach of the Holy Cross football team for next season. Kelley's contract has expired but the fine showing of the team m ns nst few games has assured lits of another chance.

Holy Cross has suffered a lot through injuries this season. Graduation will cut a big hole in the squad. McCabe and Acting Captain Donovan, ends; Morrissey and Cahill, who have played in the line for four years, and Captain Mullen and Lee, star backfield men, will receive their diplomas next June. The rest of the squad will remain intact.

The real star of the team this year was Eddie Brawley, the former Medford High star, who is the strongest candidate for the captaincy.

Rooters Claim Poor Work by Officials

Newton High School rooters are highly indignant over what they claim was incompetent officiating by the men who handled the game with Waltham Thanksgiving. Newton was penalized upward of 125 yards and is inclined to lay the blame on the shoulders of Referee Andrews. On the other hand, Waltham was penalized only once. Unbiased witnesses of the game declare it was the worst exhibition of incompetent officiating seen at a school game in years, and unless Waltham backs out next to run her games who believe in a square deal for all will find mighty few school teams willing to journey to the Watch City for the honor of playing a Waltham football team and a couple of officials thrown in for good measure.

Report Henriksen Signed by Feds

BUFFALO, Nov. 28.—It was announced semi-officially just before the officers of the Buffalo Federal League club boarded a train for Chicago to attend today's meeting of the league, that Olaf Henriksen of the Boston American League has been drafted by the Buffalo Federals roster. Henriksen was one of the heroes of the World's Series two years ago, but last season his work was mediocre, although he showed considered that the fact he was not used regularly hurt his batting average. Henriksen is signed to a two-year contract, calling for $4,000 a year, according to the story.

Ross Loses on Foul.

McVey-Wills Matched.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Nov. 28.—Sam McVey and Harry Wills, negro heavyweights, have been matched for a twenty-round bout here December 26, it was announced today.

JIMMY DUFFY IS REAL STAR OF BOXING GAME

Fred Welsh, lightweight champion, isn't finding the American division any bed of roses in any way, but he must not be forgotten that the man from Wales in his present campaign is picking out the very best men in the country to box. Welsh has had four matches now in the last month or so, every one of them with a tough fellow.

He started his American campaign with a battle with Matty Baldwin in Boston and followed with contests in New York with Ad Wolgast, one in Milwaukee with Charley White, a ten-round battle with Jimmy Duffy in Buffalo. He then fought Freddy Welle at the Arena.

It wasn't a bit of surprise to the close followers of the game in this section to note that Jimmy Duffy held the champion to an even thing in ten rounds. Duffy is one of the best boxers in the country and has demonstrated it time and time again. He it was who got a private decision over Welsh at Lockport in 1913 and won over Welsh just before the latter made the match with Ritchie in London last July. Also he gave Charley White a desperate battle in his home town.

They are quite wild over Duffy around Buffalo and Lockport, his home town, and practically the entire town turned out to watch the battle with his champion. The way Duffy is something of a freak. He claims to be able to do 133 pounds a few hours before boxing, yet he stands 5 feet 10½ inches in height and has a reach of seventy-one and a half inches, measurements that a middleweight might make a good found of. He is only twenty-three years old and is not likely to get any bigger.

"Here's a boy who fights because he loves it," Nate Lewis said the writer. "I never saw a fellow who went into a mixup with such sheer delight as does. He fairly shouts with delight when the other fellow stands up to him and mixes it. Don't understand from what you hear that Duffy is merely clever and stands off and runs. Nothing of the sort. Henriksen is signed to a two-year contract, calling for $4,000 a year, according to the story.

"He takes plenty of chances always and is on the fast and clever that he gets away with them. He hits well, too, and has a sting with either hand. I wouldn't be surprised a bit if he beat me at beating anybody."

Nate's judgment appears to have been borne out by the result of Duffy's meeting with Welsh. That's his right name, James Duffy, and he comes of Irish parentage. His record really is formidable, containing as it does names of such stars as Packey McFarland, Fred Welsh (three times), Jack Britton (twice), Charley White, Leach Cross, Eddie Murphy, Willie Beecher, Knockout Brown and Young Jack O'Brien. And he never has had a decision against him by a referee.

One of the greatest school eleven's ever developed in the East will be tried out against the crack scholastic outfit of the West when Everett High and Oak Park clash this afternoon at the Normal League ball grounds.

The game has stirred up all kinds of interest and a capacity crowd will sure be on hand when play starts at 2 o'clock.

The contest, in fact, is sort of a miniature Harvard and Yale battle.

Lovers of school football—and there are hundreds who claim that the game played by the youngsters is superior to the collegiate brand—from all parts of New England will be there when the well-known whistle starts things. There will also be a big representation from the West to cheer along the invading youths.

There will be cheering sections and bands and parades and all the flashes that go to make a big football day.

EVERETT FAVORITE.

With the battle all but on, Everett is a strong favorite in what betting has been noticed. The wonderful record of the Suburban League champions, who have not been scored on all season, surely makes them look like a formidable squad for even a college team to tackle.

But the Oak Park team, heavy and fast, is sure to prove a foe worthy of the best school team in New England. Two years ago Oak Park came out of the West and swept an Everett team down to defeat, much to the surprise and chagrin of the followers of schoolboy football in the East.

Everett is anxious and ready to wipe out that disgrace. Oak Park is equally anxious to live up to the fame of its preceding championship teams.

Both teams have been coached and trained as carefully as big college elevens are nowadays. Both go into the game, the real finale of the season in this part of the country, with their star players in the pink of condition, whatever that is.

OAK PARK HEAVY.

Whereas a couple of seasons back Oak Park had a strictly veteran outfit and Everett was more or less inexperienced, this year it is the Eastern chaps all seasoned players, while the majority of the Westerners are making their first essay in a really big game.

Everett, as is well known, has a fast team and a fighting team and a team that has all season long made no bones about smearing heavier and apparently physically stronger outfits into the discard.

Everett today, however, is up against the heaviest schoolboy eleven in the country, and it will take all the power of the crack backfield to smash through the husky, heavy Western line. The invaders for the line part of it outweigh the local champions by more than ten pounds to the man. Which is some difference, but which is very likely to be of little avail when the shifty Everett offence gets to working.

In that game of two years back, the Oak Park players literally swept the Everett youths off their sturdy Everett feet by a bewildering series of trick plays in which the forward pass was more or less conspicuous, mostly more.

BOTH IN GOOD TRIM.

Some of the experts who have delved into the records of the enemy our midst this afternoon will have it that this season the Oak Park team has nothing but straight football to rely on. But the same seems highly improbable.

Oak Park has been beaten twice this season, but in early games, and now Coach Thistlewaitt claims that his hands are a real football team and ready to stack against all comers.

Also Manager Howe, who accompanied the squad here two years ago, declares that the present team is fully as good as the eleven that went back to the West with whatever title may be said to go with just this kind of an intersectional clash.

If such is the case, that game should be a sizzler from start to finish. In the matter of clever forward passes and the like, Everett has them all and to spare. Everett learned a good lesson by the former western catastrophe, and today her plays are very much up to date, very much.

Oak Park's superior weight may slow up the Everett line a bit and consequently bother the star backfield we have mentioned, but that remains to be seen. It's just one of those things, some few hundred of which tend to make interest abnormally keen for even such an important game.

BANQUET AFTER GAME.

The Everett team had its final workout Thanksgiving against Cambridge Latin and came through flying, as usual. Oak Park worked out a bit late yesterday afternoon at the National League grounds, where matters will be settled later on in the day. It was a very light sort of practice, just enough to keep the players tuned up.

After the game is won or lost, the Everett High locals will act as hosts to the visitors at a banquet at the City Club, following which the Westerners will depart for Chicago where all the players must be back at classes Monday morning.

Red Sox May Trade Gainer for Leary

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 28.—Manager Branch Rickey of the Browns announced during his Thanksgiving stay in St. Louis that a deal is being negotiated whereby Del Gainer of the Red Sox will come to St. Louis next year for Jack Leary. Gainer is a better Leary strong as a utility first baseman and as second to third and catcher, while Rickey wants an experienced first baseman to help his infield.

Dies of Football Injuries.

CINCINNATI, O, Nov. 28.—The only football fatality of the season in this city was recorded when Frank Godden, captain of the Price Hill A. C. team, succumbed to an operation. He was injured in a game last Sunday.

STONE SEEKING TITLE GO WITH FREDDY WELSH

By RINGSIDE.

HARRY STONE, the New York boy who carries around the Australian lightweight and welterweight championships in his vest pocket, is eager to get a bout with Freddy Welsh for the world's lightweight title. Stone has been smashing his way to the front ranks of his class during the past two years, and he believes that he is now ready to try for the grand old championship.

Stone, however, must dispose of Gilbert Gallant, Chelsea's rugged little lightweight, before he will be given any consideration by Welsh. These men are scheduled to battle in a twelve-round tussle before the Atlas A. A. next Tuesday night and the "fans" should witness a hard, fast battle.

Gallant has the ability to give a good account of himself against the best men in his class. He has been coming to the front with rapid strides, as he proved by his recent victories over Leach Cross.

Consequently, friend Stone may receive a disagreeable surprise in his bout here. If such a thing happens, Gallant will be the young man to camp on the trail of Welsh.

STONE bases his claim to a right to a bout with Welsh on his victories over Herb McCoy, Hughey Meheeghan and Matt Wells. The latter is the former English lightweight champion and he has a decision over Welsh to his credit. Stone was complete master of Wells in their tussle which was staged in Australia.

The New Yorker is a big lightweight of the Willie Ritchie type. He does his best work when he weighs 135 pounds. As this is his poundage at present the men have agreed to fight Tuesday, the "fans" should witness some swell sport. Stone is a fast, shifty boxer and is also able to punch hard. Gallant is also a secret punch artist. Therefore there should be plenty of action crowded into the twelve rounds.

JOHNNY KILBANE, the feather- weight champion, has declared war on the members of the lightweight division. He wants to get matches with Charley White, Freddy Welsh, Jimmy Duffy and the other leading 122-135-pound glove men. Kilbane will make his debut fighting lightweights when he meets Joe Manfiot in a twelve-round tussle in Akron, O., early next month.

KILBANE should do well in his battles with the lightweights. He is a wonderful boxer, like Abe Attell, and consequently is able to show to advantage against men who outweigh him by ten pounds. The lightweights, however, will not have much weight on Cleveland Johnny. The featherweight king has been close to 130 pounds for most of his recent bouts, and will probably build up so that he will be in the neighborhood or so of the lightweight limit of 133 pounds.

Player Loses Leg.

EVANSVILLE, Ind., Nov. 28.—Albert Schnabel, twenty-nine years old, a member of a local independent team, had his left leg amputated by physicians in a final effort to save his life. Schnabel was injured in twelve out of fourteen games this season. Blood poisoning set in and amputation was decided to be the only means of saving his life. He is expected to recover.

Evers in Boston.

Captain Johnny Evers of the Boston Braves will be in Boston today, coming here from his home in Troy to address the Maugus Club of Wellesley tonight. He will attend some football game in Boston tie afternoon.

Somerville Alumni Ready to Battle Waltham All-Stars

The alumni football teams of Somerville High and Waltham High will clash on the Waltham High School field this afternoon at 2:30. This game is an annual affair and is creating more interest with each succeeding year.

Both lineups will present many college stars of the present day and school players of recent years.

The following will play for Somerville: Nolin and Millmore of Dartmouth, Anderson of Boston College, Dickerman of Princeton, Doone of Colgate, Mooney of Andover, Wiley of Tech and Woodman of N. H. State. The teams will line up as follows:

WALTHAM.		SOMERVILLE.
Fagan, l.e.		e., Fong
Johnson, l.t.		t.l., Nolen
Cobb, l.g.		g.l., Anderson
Tomlin, c.		c., Millmore

White, r.h.b.		l.h.b., Dickerman
Fillson, f.b.		f.b., Doone

Medford and Malden Alumni Teams Clash

A record crowd is expected to attend the game between the alumni teams of Malden and Medford High Schools this afternoon at the Malden High Athletic Field. Both teams will have many college stars in the lineup and the game is expected to be a thriller. The teams will lineup as follows:

W. and J. to Play Rutgers in New York

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—Washington and Jefferson will battle Rutgers at the Polo Grounds this afternoon. The most spectacular gridiron battle ever witnessed in New York is anticipated. Both teams are experts in the new style play.

The W. and J. team has established a fine record this season and is rated as the favorite. The teams will line up as follows:

RUTGERS.		W. AND J.
Barkalow, le.		Lea, Hunter
Nash, lt.		Wherry
McGinley, lg.		Yonkers
Miller, c.		Crichton
Ward, rg.		Wilson

Referee—Nate Tufts, Brown. Umpire—Bidwell, Swarthmore.

Hingeley Captain of Wesleyan Team

MIDDLETOWN, Ct., Nov. 28.—John W. Hingeley, 1916, of Evanston, Ill., has been elected captain of the Wesleyan football team for next year. In his sophomore year Hingeley played centre on the varsity, but this Fall Coach Eustis shifted him to halfback and later, when Captain Keenan was injured, to fullback. He broke his leg in the Brown game and has been out of the lineup since. He is a member of the Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity and of the Corpse and Coffin, honorary junior society.

Deer Total Is 1,295.

Sixteen additional reports of deer killed during the recent open season in Massachusetts were received at the State House by the commission on fisheries and game, bringing the total thus far reported up to 1,295.

FEDERALS OUT TO SIGN EVERY STAR POSSIBLE

With baseball peace lost—temporarily, at least—in the shuffle, the Federal League, it is said, has resumed its pounding up of several stars (or near stars) of organized baseball. The names of the men the "Feds" have secured will, it is said, be announced after the meeting of the league, which takes place in Chicago.

Rumor has it that the men signed up by the Feds includes the following: Magee of the Cardinals, Eddie Collins of the Athletics, Ping Bodie of the White Sox, Tillie Shafer of the Giants, William Fisher of the Brooklyn Nationals, Ed Konetchy of the Pittsburghs, Hans Lobert of the Phillies, Ray Corhan of San Francisco, formerly of the White Sox and Babe Borton of Venice, Cal., formerly of the White Sox.

It is pretty well understood that Magee and Konetchy have cast their lot with the "Feds," but as for the other men named there is nothing to go on but rumor.

Now that the peace negotiations have fallen through, there is nothing left for the Federals to do but mend their fences for the campaign of 1915. The plan to put a club in Cleveland seems to have failed, as the backers of that venture couldn't guarantee enough money to satisfy President Gilmore. A dispatch from St. Louis indicates that the backers of the St. Louis Federals are ready to go ahead.

CHANGES IN CIRCUIT.

There have been reports that there would probably be one or two changes in the Federal League circuit. It was hinted that Kansas City would be dropped for several reasons, the principal one being that Kansas City is too far away. But the backers of that club protested strongly against being dropped, and it is now understood that they will continue to form one of the eight of the "Fed" circuit.

The Wards of Brooklyn assert that they are perfectly satisfied with the way things are going in the Federal League. They point to the fact that they did not expect to make money the first year, but they are confident that they will eventually win their way into the hearts of the Brooklyn fans. The Wards are men with plenty of money behind them. It is believed that they have supplied not a little of the Federal League ammunition.

MEETING AT CHICAGO.

The meeting of the "Feds" in Chicago should clear the air to a considerable extent. The baseball public will learn just what the new organization intends to do. Men prominent in organized baseball, such as Ban Johnson, Garry Herrmann and John K. Tener, profess to believe that the Federals have overbid their hold and will not be dangerous at all next season. The "Feds" are not saying much, but are nevertheless giving light ahead in their plan to make things interesting for the organized baseball brigade.

Chance May Purchase the Los Angeles Club

Frank L. Chance, peerless leader and former manager of the New York Yankees, may put over a deal whereby he will purchase the Los Angeles franchise in the Pacific Coast League. Henry Berry, present owner of the Angels, has purchased the San Francisco club and is anxious to dispose of his Los Angeles holdings.

Several propositions have been made Berry, it is said, for the purchase of the club, but he favors Chance as the new owner. Chance, in the event that he gets the franchise, would be president of the club, but probably would not take an active part in the management.

However, he may be at the head of the team and can keep in touch with his manager at all times. The peerless leader has been considering the purchase of a good minor league franchise for some time.

Amateur Athletes to Compete with the Professionals

The first indoor athletic meet where amateurs will be allowed to compete with professionals will be staged at Mechanics Building Saturday evening, December 5. Yesterday the New England Registration Committee, headed by W. C. Prout, president of the Irish-American A. A., J. Frank Facey and George V. Brown, called a special meeting to pass on a petition, the first to be acted upon for an indoor set of mixed games since the new ruling adopted at the national meeting. All the committee were in favor of issuing such a sanction.

The amateur athletic events that will be held in the amateur-professional athletic carnival will include a 300-yard, 600-yard and one-mile run. All these events will be handicapped and will be a certain raiser to the professional ten-mile Marathon race, in which such stars as Wood of Canada, Al Shrubb of England, Billy Sherring, the American champion, and Carl Nicmuhen of Finland also have entered.

Entry blanks for the amateur athletic events and other meetings dates had discussed the proposition several times and that the general opinion was that the time was ripe for some such move on the part of organized baseball.

"They may have a lot of men signed up, as they have stated from time to time, but, of course, we doubt it," the Cubs' executive head said. Both of the old leagues have established themselves pretty well. The American league has its lists nicely protected and the National League is not so far behind.

CAN'T STAND HIGH SALARIES.

"The day of the exorbitant, extortionate salary has gone by. Take the case of Joe Magee, for instance. If the Federal League really has him signed up it is doubtless at a salary far in excess of the player's worth. Otherwise he would not make the flop. And that is only a fair sample. The Feds cannot afford to pay such salaries. We know, because the clubs of organized baseball, after years of experience, have found they could not afford it, and we know we are in a better position to do it than they are.

"Fielder Jones took a stand against the huge, out-of-all-reason salary the other day, and has cancelled their offer of $60,000 for three years' work to Walter Johnson. There wasn't any sense in that bid, and perhaps it was made for publicity purposes only, and perhaps with the idea of impressing somebody with the wealth and importance of the Federal League. Johnson is as bad as a direct result of that. He tried to start a bidding contest for his services and now nobody is bidding for him, not even his own club.

AMERICAN LEAGUE SAFE.

"If the teams of organized baseball started out to grab Fed players they could make it cost the upstart a pretty penny on top of the frightful contract they now have on their hands, which I imagine is about as staggering a load as could be devised."

It is admitted by the Federal League officials that the American League has its players tied up with commendable tightness, or at least such of its stars as are really desirable. It can save money, but it was a case of safety first.

The National League clubs are said to be in a more agreeable position.

The Feds claim they can get any number of men away from organized baseball because of the looseness of some of the contracts. But President Thomas declares his position safe as far as his own club is concerned.

Auburndale Boy to Captain Amherst

AMHERST, Nov. 28.—Stuart William Rider, 1916, of Auburndale, has been elected captain of the Amherst football team for next year. His position is that of halfback. His work this Fall has featured in nearly every game and he has proved the most consistent ground gainer on the team. Rider is also president of the junior class and a member of the Alpha Delta Phi fraternity.

HAMMOND, Ind., Nov. 28.—Jimmy Clabby, the pugilist, quit his theatrical engagement in Chicago today and is hurrying home here to be at the bedside of his mother, who lies critically ill from injuries received in an automobile accident.

BASEBALL NOTES.

"BRESNAHAN IS 17TH WHOLE HOGS" is the way Roger Bresnahan signs the letter announcing he will be the boss. "This ought to get a rise out of Joe McGinnity," he says in the letter.

"HE HAS JUST AS MUCH AUTHORITY as Frank Chance ever had," the Cubs' president says further in telling of the fuss which seems a little more like the tooth and nail affair.

WITH THEIR ENTIRE STAFF CUT 15 per cent, and the salary limit placed to players, the Cubs look out as a Class A A league in name only.

THE HAMMER THROWING RECORDS of the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States A. C. as the A. A. U. recently announced, are quite at low figures, according to Jim Mitchel, "the order insists the champs pay up in Cleveland."

IF MONEY IS NO OBJECT TO TILLY Shafer, as has long been intimated by the baseball writers, he will have a chance to show what inducements the Feds are holding out as he broke Ernie Quigley.

THE NOISE THAT SOUNDS LIKE A BOIL-er factory or a busy day is just the echo of the Cubs' executive office during "Set 'em Up" the contract that is scheduled for the time when Charles Weeghman and the Cubs part.

PRESIDENT TENER OF THE CUBS rises to remark that there is no truth in the rumor that Joe Tinker is to be traded.

ARCHER IS SIGNED UP BY THE CUBS for a two-year contract, in which the terms are not disclosed.

ROGER BRESNAHAN DISCOVERED, IN looking over the Cubs' payroll, that he was in need of a good second baseman.

AS ZIMMERMAN IS A FIXTURE AT third, Bresnahan will endeavor to secure an experienced keystone stoker to trade before the season opens.

NATIONALS PLAN TO SECURE MEN FROM FEDERALS

National League magnates may adopt retaliatory measures against the Federal League at the big meeting of the senior major baseball organization in New York December 8. It may be decided at this meeting to make a settle into the ranks of the Federal League and pick off some of the promising young fellows that have been grabbed by the "outlaws."

This was suggested to President Thomas of the Cubs the other day in a fanning bee to his office, and he announced that he and other magnates had discussed the proposition several times and that the general opinion was that the time was ripe for some such move on the part of organized baseball.

"They may have a lot of men signed up, as they have stated from time to time, but, of course, we doubt it," the Cubs' executive head said. Rockland High Five Has Hard Schedule

Manager Mortimer Reardon of the Rockland High basketball team has arranged a very attractive schedule for his team as follows:

December 4, Abington H., Bridgewater High at Bridgewater, 18, open; 19, open; 22, open.

January 1, Oliver Ames High at Randolph Easton, 2, open; 8, Brockton High at Brockton, 15, open; 16, Weymouth High at Rockland, 19, Reading High at Reading, 22, open; 29, Thayer Academy at Rockland.

February 2, Brockton at Rockland, 5, open; 9, Oliver Ames High at Rockland; 12, Thayer Academy at Braintree; 16, Weymouth High at Weymouth; 19, open; 26, Reading High at Reading; 26, Bridgewater High at Rockland.

College Boat Race to Be Three Miles

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 28.—The intercollegiate rowing regatta at Poughkeepsie next June will be rowed over a three-mile course, instead of the four, as has been done in previous years. The stewards of the rowing association have not announced the change, but all the other colleges have been sounded on the change with all agreeing with the exception of Penn.

Coach Nicholls stated that while he favored a four-mile jaunt if the other colleges agreed to it, Pennsylvania would certainly follow in the wake of the other colleges and row three miles.

M. G. A. ADOPTS A NEW SYSTEM TO RATE PLAYER

A new form of rating golfers, who are to be rated on the 1915 list, has been adopted by the Massachusetts Golf Association. The form is similar to the one used by the U. G. A.

Secretaries of clubs will hereafter furnish the data concerning golfers who are to be rated on the 1915 list.

Hitherto the information forthcoming from the clubs has been received by the officials in a more or less allahed compilation of facts and it has been hard work to whip the matter in proper shape.

Another new idea to be put through in the 1915 list is the printing of the residences of the golfers handicapped along with their handicaps and the customary other information. In the past no effort has been made to begin work so early on the list as this year and it is expected that the 1915 list will be ready a month ahead of the first open tournament in 1915. It is figured that about 3,200 names will be seen on the new list. There will be no twenty-four handicap men in the 1915 list. These players will all be rated twenty, so that the class of the duffer handicapped will be no smaller than contained on this year's list.

SHE saw the appeal in his eyes, and turned away her head. He seized her hand and she did not withdraw it. She was conscious of no love for him, but of an increasing tenderness. The years of wifehood had bound her to him with a thousand chains of common sympathies, common memories. She had been a little in love with him once; they had been such good friends; he was very kind and generous and Jimmy was his son. She could not bear to see him suffer. The master, if not the wife, in her was stirred.

She placed her hand with a tender movement on his grey head. "It's all right," she murmured, with a pitying, kindly smile. "It was my fault, I suppose. We care for each other too much to quarrel, don't we? Let us forget and forgive. Perhaps we shall love each other all the better for this." ("Now the man I loved has proved a scoundrel," was her unspoken thought). "You do want me, don't you?"

He took her in his arms and kissed her tenderly. As gently she extricated herself from his embrace.

"But you must let me go back to Jimmy, dear," she said. "In a month or two all this will have been forgotten. Just for a little while you must let me go—then I will come back to you."

He pleaded with her, but in the end he let her have her way. She kissed him and left him.

The tenderness vanished from his face. His anger had taken a new direction. No longer jealous of Steele, he hated him for the wrong he had done to Leslie. The soldier was a black-hearted villain and one who deserved not to live. By vengeance on him, moreover, the angry husband hoped to atone for the pain he had himself inflicted on Leslie.

HE DECIDES TO HAVE VENGEANCE ON STEELE

Steele, according to his own admission, had committed an offence against the law; but to the law Varney would not have dreamed of appealing even if its intervention had not inevitably brought shame upon his wife. No, he would settle this business in the old-fashioned way, of which he had had practical experience in the circles he had frequented in Paris and Vienna.

Luckily, Steele was the last man on earth to shirk such an encounter as the silly pretext that it was theatrical. He had, indeed, plainly intimated that he expected a settlement of that sort. Well, he should not be kept long waiting.

With a grim smile Varney sat down at his bureau and dashed off two notes—one to Steele to ask him to send a friend at once to Sir Ralph Gaveston to arrange the preliminaries, the other to Sir Ralph himself to hold himself in readiness for such a visit. These letters he despatched at once by his own servants. So the whole, he reflected, it was a good thing that Leslie was returning to Scotland on the morrow.

He bade farewell at King's Cross. Never, it seemed to him, had she seemed more tender and affectionate. He went to his club in buoyant spirits. He found Sir Ralph awaiting him.

"I've fixed up everything," announced the baronet with the complacency invariably exhibited by all but the principals in such matters. "His man—a Captain Rhedan, also of the Egyptian service—called on me before I was well out of bed, and we had everything settled in half an hour. Poulogne and—the rendezvous—between the Digue and Le Portel—at seven o'clock tomorrow morning—will that suit you? Devilish, early, I admit. Pistols!"

CHAPTER XXXII.

"THE hour is all right and the place," said Varney, a shadow crossing his face, "but tomorrow doesn't give me much time, does it? I'm bound to make certain arrangements, you see."

"What arrangements?" queried the baronet, glancing at his cousin, sharply. "Do you mean your will?"

"Exactly. In view of recent disclosures I think I had better make a fresh one so as to leave nothing to chance—or to any legal doubts at the last moment."

"Um—m." Sir Ralph appeared to ponder the matter. "I don't think I should take your family solicitor into such a matter—the wording might arouse their suspicions and something might leak out. I should just draw up a simple holograph will leaving everything to Jimmy or Leslie as the case may be, with perhaps a bequest to a poor relation"—the baronet winked—"and sign and have it witnessed in the boat or at Boulogne."

"You see, you'll come back all right, old man, and then you will be wild if you have let those confounded fussy attorneys of yours into the business. And there is also this"—Sir Ralph leaned forward with an air of great earnestness—"It is understood with those other chaps that this affair is to be kept quiet. Well if you were to fall and had been seen making a will the day before, the story would be bound to leak out and the survivor would be cashiered."

"That sounds all right," agreed Varney. "The will will be short and sweet, and the stewards can witness it in the boat as you suggest. I won't forget you, old chap."

During the last three days Sir Ralph, by an appearance of disinterested zeal for the family and by an unwonted show of sympathy had contrived to efface almost completely the distrust with which his kinsman had for so many years regarded him.

They dined together and departed by the night train. Both were in excellent spirits, though at times the thought would intrude itself on Varney that he might very possibly never see his wife or child again. Stepping aboard the boat, he looked about the deck in expectation of seeing his adversary. His companion explained that it had been his intention to travel by the earlier boat.

"Let's get this new will business over at once," said Varney. He sat down in a distant corner of the saloon and beckoned to the chief steward. "I want you and another of your men to witness this will," he said. "I suppose you have no objection to doing so."

The men had, of course, no objection. The will was duly signed and witnessed and placed by the testator in his breast-pocket. When he paid for the refreshments he had ordered the stewards found that they had been liberally tipped for the use of their signatures.

The Ostend railway station was reached in due course, and the two men drove through the sleeping town of Boulogne. They alighted at a small hotel in the Capecure quarter, which Sir Ralph remarked would suffice for their needs during the few hours that remained to them. "We'll make a night of it, I suppose" he added, glancing at his cousin; "no good turning in."

"Isn't it?" replied Oswald testily. "You are a pretty sort of second, I must say. I want my hand to be as steady as may be in the morning. No champagne for me. A couple of hours' sleep will put us right. You sit up all night if you like.

Oswald turned in and was soon sound asleep. His thoughts ran on the man he was to face. It was not therefore surprising that he awoke to find that in his dreams he had been living over again that fatal time at Aden with Victor Steele bringing him on his own horse and tramping thirsty and blood-stained beside him. "Lord," he groaned, "and it is to be over again! I shall kill or who will kill me in another hour."

Sir Ralph was bending over him. "Time we started, my boy," he warned him in cheerful tones. "We must be first on the field."

PUTS WILL IN ENVELOPE ADDRESSED TO LESLIE

Oswald hurriedly dressed. As he applied the...mututinal steel he was glad to notice that his hand was as steady as when he had fought his last duel twenty years before. He felt in his pocket for the will he had executed overnight. He drew it out and placed it in an envelope which he addressed to Leslie at Rivercastle. "We will post this as we go along," he remarked to his cousin.

"No, we may not have time. Better have it posted now. Give it to me." The baronet snatched the long envelope out of his cousin's hand and ran downstairs calling for the porter. At the end of three or four minutes he reappeared a little out of breath. "That's all right," he announced, "I gave the fellow a franc and saw him post it at the box opposite. Now we had better be off."

A cab was already in waiting. The two men drove away, followed by the curious gaze of the night servants, who guessed what was afoot. Varney smoked in silence and somehow wished it were all right. Less than Steele that he was going to fight. He wondered if after all there could have been a mistake. . . .

The cab halted at a lonely spot near the edge of the cliff. Bidding the driver await them, the Englishmen alighted and walked down the steep path to the sands. It was a chill, damp morning, and Varney found himself shivering. "There they are!" he exclaimed.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

SIR RALPH hurried down the path ahead of his principal; at the same time the other man left Victor and advanced to meet him. Varney followed at a leisurely pace. On reaching the sands he was joined by his second.

"They have submitted a very irregular proposal," said Gaveston, with a sneer. "Steele, it seems, objects to shedding blood or to his own being shed, and proposes that you settle this matter with your fists. To me the suggestion sounds insulting, and I told Rhedan so. Of course Steele is a younger man than you—"

Varney flushed. "Confounded impudence!" he exclaimed. "Does Steele think we are a couple of schoolboys? We did not come all this way to thrash each other's eyes. Tell Rhedan that this is a serious duel, and that I can place only one interpretation on any proposal to diminish its gravity."

"Right!" said Sir Ralph, unable to conceal his satisfaction at this decision. He rejoined Victor's second and remained in conversation with him for four or five minutes. Varney saw the two men spin a coin and knew that it was to decide the choice of the ground. They next opened the pistol case each had brought with him and examined the weapons. Victor stood some distance off, his hands thrust deep into the pockets of his raincoat, gazing moodily at the sea.

Sir Ralph returned to his cousin. "Well," he said cheerily, "it's all settled—thirty paces, you to fire simultaneously when I drop the handkerchief. We won the toss, but there doesn't seem to be much difference in the ground. There's no sun, either. Now are you ready?"

"Quite," said Varney firmly. He divested himself of his hat and light overcoat, which Sir Ralph placed on a rock. Victor had similarly removed his outer garments, and now stood awaiting his adversary. Sir Ralph paced the distance, and, taking his cousin by the arm, placed him in position.

"All right here?" he asked.

"I think so—yes."

Victor at this moment glanced upward at the sky. "In another second the sun will be starting straight into my adversary's eye," he told his second in a loud, distinct tone.

Sir Ralph laughed ironically and winked at his cousin. "Now," he called, "are you both ready?"

"Yes," came the answer simultaneously.

"The pistols were placed in the men's hands by the seconds, and Gaveston took up his position between them but well out of the line of fire.

"At the word 'Three' I drop the handkerchief," he announced.

As Victor had predicted, the sun now shone out full on Varney's face. "One, two, three." The handkerchief dropped.

Thine Own Worst Enemy

THAT is the big struggle that lies in wait for most women who love and marry—the battle with the thing that uncoils from the unusual sweetness of her heart—the emerald-eyed monster we call just JEALOUSY. You've got to have a valiant heart and a chin that wills, and you've got to lay his ghost for good and all or you will stumble some day over the tiny corpse of Love, already cold and stiff, with his gold curls scorched and his tiny pulse, that beats engine-like through life, still. For where the scales of jealousy rustle there is the death of Love.—NELL BRINKLEY.

Their Married Life

Helen Loses a Diamond, Has a Terrible Afternoon and Finds She Has Worried for Nothing

(Copyright, 1914, by International News Service.)

THERE was a great swarm of women at the door, but Helen and Louise managed to push their way through into the foyer and behold where they checked their wraps.

"Talk about crowds," whispered Louise over her shoulder, as she made her way into the large dressing-room, "have you ever seen anything worse?"

Helen agreed without speaking. She hated crowds of any kind and had only been persuaded to attend the bridge because Louise had told her that it was in a good cause and she could not refuse to patronize it.

"Can't you imagine playing cards with some of the old friends that you see around here? I know I'm going to some stodgy old person, but I don't dote on them, so I won't mind."

"Don't, Louise, you fairly make me shiver. Playing cards with a lot of strange women is bad enough, but that is worse."

"Cheer up, my child; you may win a prize. They're sure to give a handsome, but as I never have any luck it must be you who will go home decorated with a cut-glass berry bowl or a half-dozen bouillon cups, or a set of candlesticks."

"Just what I need," said Helen, her interest roused by the latter item. "I think they would have an expensive prize like that. If so, I certainly am going to play."

"I'm almost positive about it," laughed Louise. "Come on now, we'd better find our tables. There you are—and Louise left Helen at a table with three other women while she hurried off to find her own place.

Helen was not a good bridge player—she was too sensitive and not sure enough of herself, and that nice enough of herself, and that nice made her nervous, and she was sure to play very badly in consequence and, therefore, the prospect of the candlesticks which she had wanted for her dressing table ever since she could remember spurred her on, and for the first half of the first rubber played very well. Her score went up rapidly, and when she and Louise scored a game later she displayed distinctly as gleefully as a child.

"I saw the prize and Louise exactly found there are two sets of candlesticks. They're quite hideous, but I'm sure I can get one of them. Helen laughed, and all other three games went off in the same way, Helen not leaning forward as she was in the act of shuffling the cards, and not

HELEN WAS A SENSE OF TERRIBLE DISASTER

"I beg your pardon, but I am afraid you have lost one of the diamonds out of your ring."

Helen started and uttered a little exclamation as her hand went up to her throat where the gift had been displayed. It was the brooch that Warren had given her last Christmas, the one really valuable gift she had received given her of his own free will.

Helen had never forgotten the thrill of surprise and pleasure that had come over her when she found it lying on a tray on Christmas morning. It couldn't be possible that she had lost a stone.

With a sickening little sense of disaster, Helen hastily unpinned the brooch from her throat and stared at it unbelievingly as it lay in her hand. One of the largest stones was missing from the outer circle of diamonds. If it had only been one of the smaller ones she could have replaced it without any trouble, but the larger stones were all over a carat and would cost more than Helen could afford.

"What a shame," said one of the women. "Are you sure you had the stone when you came in? If so perhaps it will be found."

Helen knew just how unlikely that would be, still the crowd was dense as it had been this afternoon. Of course there would be a search for it after the others had gone, but she wasn't even sure that she had lost it after all, and Louise had arrived. Perhaps it had been loosened by her coat and she had lost it in the street car. If so she would never recover it.

The woman at Helen's left noted her cards audibly, and Helen realized that they did not consider the loss of the stone of enough importance to stop the game or even delay it. She picked up her cards and began to arrange her hand. After all it made little or no difference to women of their stamp whether or not they lost or misplaced a stone or a card.

Although Helen was one of the many of being wealthy Helen could never get used to the attitude of the rich with the attitude of the rich with the attitude of the rich with

Dodge Car Given Public Reception by Boston Autoists

The Dodge Brothers motor car is here. A private exhibition of this latest member of the motor world was given to a party of newspaper men yesterday afternoon. The finished product is all that one has been led to believe. It is an up-to-date motor car in every sense of the term, being well constructed and excellently finished, possessing all of the features of a modern motor vehicle.

The car itself has been described at considerable length in the AMERICAN. In a short spin yesterday the car, loaded with five persons, showed great flexibility, having a range of speed of from five to forty miles an hour on high. It rounded curves steadily smoothly, the spring construction and balance having been devised for comfort as well as appearance.

The car will be given a public reception today. Some fifty automobile owners will meet the car and escort it along Commonwealth avenue to Arlington street to Beacon, Schoolt, Washington, State, Broad, Milk, Washington, West, Tremont and Boylston streets to the location of the Henshaw Motor Company, where the car will be placed on public exhibition.

The car will stop in front of City Hall and be officially welcomed into Boston by Mayor Curley.

Every American Should Be a Trained Soldier

Common Sense, Not a Vast Standing Army, Would Bring This About

Copyright, 1914, by the Star Company.

We produce in this country a great many thousand well-made boys every year. They grow to manhood.

When they are little boys, they all play games and exercise.

When they are bigger, the majority of them sit, watch, cheer, howl rah-rah, while a small minority play the games, football, baseball.

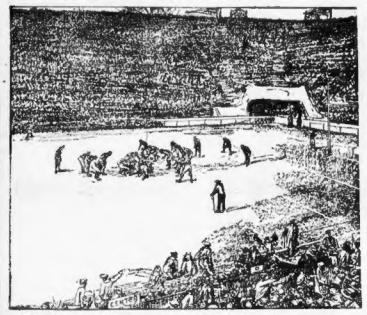
The football and the baseball are amusing, but those that play play too hard.

If war should come—and we have passed the stage where men joke about war—then the football players with the crowds looking on would be of no use to the country without a great deal of training.

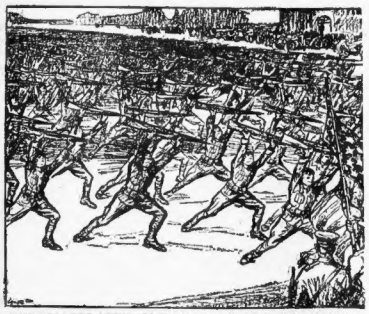
Why not give the training that would be useful in time of need to all our young men—making them all exercise, making them all stronger, and turning out each year thousands of men with the training that would make soldiers of them in short order?

We republish here two pictures, with credit for sound common sense to Puck, from which the pictures were taken.

THE "COLLEGE ARMY" AS A RESERVE FOR UNCLE SAM



COLLEGE FOOTBALL—Of Physical Benefit to but few of the Students; of no Benefit to the Nation.



THE COLLEGE ARMY—Of Physical Benefit to All of the Students; of Inestimable Practical Worth to the Nation.

The first picture shows a few exercising, and a great crowd watching, developing enthusiasm but not muscle.

The second picture shows how easy it would be to have all of the young men taking part in the athletic work and fitting themselves to serve their country at the same time.

The lines underneath the two pictures are also from Puck and express a sound common sense idea.

We don't want a gigantic army, spending the years doing nothing while others work to feed the army. One of our statesmen now advocates an army of five hundred thousand men.

We couldn't pay, feed and arm these men for less than two dollars a day. That would be THREE HUNDRED AND SIXTY-FIVE MILLION DOLLARS A YEAR—and probably twice that amount.

We need a great navy to keep any enemy from landing on our shores. That navy should be truly great on the water, under the water and in the air.

And we ought to have on our land young men growing up EVERY ONE OF THEM TRAINED AS A SOLDIER IN HIS BOYHOOD AND YOUTH, striving to excel in the military training that would fit him to defend his country, and that would be better for him physically than the greater part of so-called athletics.

Every young American should have a rifle and be taught to use it. Certain gentlemen will tell you that that would be "dangerous."

But if we can't trust our own men, we may as well go out of business as a republic. Every man in Switzerland has his rifle, why not here?

Our forefathers were ready for the British because every man

I WAS BOUGHT AT TEN LAST NIGHT FROM A LITTLE CLERK, WHO WAS ALMOST ILL WITH FATIGUE
THE LITTLE GIRL FROM WHOM I WAS PURCHASED WAS ILL FROM OVER-WORK. SHE WON'T HAVE ANY CHRISTMAS.
THE CLERK WHO SOLD ME LAST NIGHT HAD WORKED 17 HOURS.
IT'S JUST AS WELL THAT THE LITTLE KIDS TO-DAY WON'T KNOW OF THE TIRED FRAIL CLERK WHO SOLD ME.
WE WERE PURCHASED AT THE LAST MINUTE BY A LADY WHO SHOULD HAVE THOUGHT OF OTHER MOTHER'S CHILDREN—THE CLERKS.
THEY GOT ME IN THE RUSH LAST NIGHT. THE POOR CLERK HAD HAD NO DINNER.
I HEARD A LITTLE TIRED CLERK SAY SHE WISHED CHRISTMAS HAD NEVER BEEN STARTED
IT'S AWFULLY HARD FOR ME TO SMILE TO-DAY BECAUSE OF THINKING OF THOSE POOR SALESGIRLS

MY DEAR WHAT IN THE WORLD ARE YOU DOING WITH YOUR JEWELS
THIS NEIGHBORHOOD IS INFESTED WITH BURGLARS AND A COAL HOD IS THE LAST PLACE A BURGLAR WOULD LOOK FOR JEWELS
DO YOU LIKE IT IT WILL ONLY TAKE ONE YARD THE WAY THEY WEAR 'EM NOW DAYS
GREAT SCOTT! THIS HOUSE IS COLD AS AN ICE BOX! THE FURNACE MUST BE OUT! ILL GO DOWN AND SEE—
STOP HIM!
STOP! WILLIAM, COME BACK
DON'T! WE'LL START THE FIRE
GO-A-WAY! ARE YOU PEOPLE NUTTY! I'M PUTTING COAL ON THE FIRE
NO DEAR NOT THAT COAL—THOSE ARE MY JEWELS
THE SAFE JEWEL CASE IS BURGLAR PROOF

DON'T MISS MR. POWERS' LAUGHABLE CARTOONS IN TOMORROW'S SUNDAY AMERICAN

For the First Time in 38 Years, 2 Months and 21 Days, a Massachusetts Man Will Go to Church on Sunday

The Crimes Attributed to 15-Year-Old Jesse Harding Pomeroy Were Fiendish, Inhuman—It is a Question Whether the Commonwealth's Treatment of Pomeroy, Now 55, Hasn't Been EQUALLY FIENDISH AND INHUMAN

Jesse H. Pomeroy, fifty-five years old, of Charlestown, Massachusetts, will go to church tomorrow for the first time since September 7, 1876.

Pomeroy at fifteen tortured and murdered LITTLE CHILDREN. He was Boston's "boy fiend." He was found guilty of murder. Parents clamored for vengeance. Humanitarians pleaded for mercy.

It was announced—at the time—that the humanitarians had won. Said Governor Rice:

> We do, by and with the advice of our Council, grant to him, the said Jesse Harding Pomeroy, a commutation of the punishment which he is liable to endure by the aforesaid sentence to that of SOLITARY CONFINEMENT AT HARD LABOR IN THE STATE PRISON DURING HIS NATURAL LIFE.

The big gates at Charlestown closed behind Jesse Harding Pomeroy on the seventh day of September, in the year 1876. For thirty-eight years, two months and twenty-one days Jesse Harding Pomeroy, boy and man, has celebrated his birthdays, his "holidays" and all his other days, in SOLITARY CONFINEMENT. They say his cell is the "strongest cell in the world."

Pomeroy is now to come out of his living tomb—not very far out, but, nevertheless, OUT. By vote of Governor Walsh and HIS Council, a generation after Rice, the "boy fiend" is to be permitted to go to church—in the prison—on Sunday.

What will Jesse Pomeroy THINK about church?

How will Pomeroy ACT in church?

Will he sing? CAN he sing?

What does Pomeroy think about CHRISTIANS and CHRISTIANITY and the CHRISTIAN COMMONWEALTH?

Does Pomeroy LIKE the idea of going to church in prison? Would he prefer a ride in an automobile? a conversation over the telephone? a trip in an aeroplane? an hour with the moving pictures?

The Sunday AMERICAN tomorrow will contain a special article of great interest on POMEROY'S FIRST SUNDAY AT CHURCH. You may read, in the Sunday AMERICAN, something about the sermon Jesse Pomeroy will hear. Recent letters of the Man in Solitary show what the man of fifty-five is thinking about, and how much he has changed from the boy of fifteen.

The Sunday AMERICAN tomorrow will contain a number of OTHER FEATURES.

The Mayor of Boston says that the girls of one Boston factory go mad—or worse—because they are miserably underpaid by wealthy employers.

The Sunday AMERICAN has conducted an investigation of the conditions commented upon so vigorously by His Honor the Mayor. The results, with an interesting picture or two, will be placed before our readers.

Then there is the suggestion that, in the event of ultimate German success, THE UNITED STATES MAY BE ANOTHER BELGIUM!

THIS suggestion is made by an eminent Bostonian, Professor Barrett Wendell of Harvard.

In the Harvard Crimson, Professor Wendell administers the birch to those Little Navy and Little Army people who are forever crying out against an increase of our military forces.

If Germany wins, Professor Wendell says, Great Britain's possessions all over the world will immediately become the object of German attack.

And, he believes, it would be entirely feasible for Germany to land her troops here in Boston, or over at New York, and MARCH THEM STRAIGHT TO CANADA.

"But," YOU say, "we should object!"

THAT, Professor Wendell says, is what Belgium did!

The Wendell article may not frighten you, but it WILL interest you. We have taken the great liberty to "lift" it from the Harvard Crimson in order that EVERYBODY may read it.

EVERYBODY—in New England—reads the Sunday AMERICAN.

DO YOU KNOW THAT—

The port of Boston has three large grain elevators with a total capacity of two and a half million bushels, which load grain into vessels at the rate of 10,000 bushels an hour?

had a rifle for bears and Indians—it was just as good for Redcoats.

The Boers were able to hold the power of England in check for a long time, BECAUSE EVERY BOER COULD SHOOT AND HAD A GUN TO SHOOT WITH.

We don't want a great standing army. We don't need it. We want a powerful navy, must and shall have it.

We ought to have as soon as possible in this nation two or three millions of young men, trained in their youth as soldiers, ready to be called upon at any moment and quickly brought up to military standard for the nation's defence.
